BUTTER PROSECUTION AT MIDLETON.

In the King's Bench Division, Dublin, yesterday, before the Lord Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Gibson, and Mr. Justice Dodd, the case of Horan, appellant, Power, respondent, was heard. It was an appeal brought by the County Council of Cork from a decision of the magistrates at Midleton Petty Sessions dismissing a prosecution brought by their inspector against the respondent for selling butter which was not of the proper substance and quality, on the ground that the summons had been issued after the twenty-eight days provided in the Foods and Drugs Act had expired.

The Court allowed the appeal with costs, reversing the decision of the magistrates, and sending the case back to them for re-hearing.

Mr. T. D. Sullivan (instructed by Messrs. Exham and Sons) appeared for the County Council.

OILS AND FATS OF INDIAN MEAL.

Yesterday in the King's Bench Division, Dublin, before the Lord Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Gibson, and Mr. Justice Dodd, the case of Lynch, appellant, v. McCarthy, respondent, was listed for argument. It was an appeal on case stated on an appeal brought by William Lynch, of Cappamore, County Limerick, from a decision of the magistrates at Murroe Petty Sessions, County Limerick, on the 8th of November last, imposing upon him a fine of £1 for having on the 20th July last sold to Sergeant Timothy McCarthy, R.I.C., inspector under the Foods and Drugs Act, 2lb. of Indian meal, purchased as a sample, which had been deprived of portion of its oils and fats. For the defence it was stated that the meal sold was not intended for human food, but for cattle, there being two kinds of Indian meal, the only difference between them being that one was ground finer than the other. The abstraction of oil had been going on for many years in America, and also in Ireland; and up to the present time the part of the oil taken in the germ from the berry was given back to the meal ground from the yellow part of the berry.

When the case was reached, Mr. Phelps (instructed by Messrs. Fitt and Co.), who appeared for the defendant, said they did not intend to argue the case. The conviction would accordingly stand, and they would pay the taxed costs of the hearing in the court below.

The case was accordingly struck out.

BUTTER PROSECUTION AT MIDLETON.

In the King's Bench Division, Dublin, yesterday, before the Lord Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Gibson, and Mr. Justice Dodd, the case of Horan, appellant, Power, respondent, was heard. It was an appeal brought by the County Council of Cork from a decision of the magistrates at Midleton Petty Sessions dismissing a prosecution brought by their inspector against the respondent for selling butter which was not of the proper substance and quality, on the ground that the summons had been issued after the twenty-eight days provided in the Foods and Drugs Act had expired.

The Court allowed the appeal with costs, reversing the decision of the magistrates, and sending the case back to them for re-hearing.

Mr. T. D. Sullivan (instructed by Messrs. Exham and Sons) appeared for the County Council.

OILS AND FATS OF INDIAN MEAL.

Yesterday in the King's Bench Division, Dublin, before the Lord Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Gibson, and Mr. Justice Dodd, the case of Lynch, appellant; McCarthy, respondent, was listed for argument. It was an appeal on case stated on an appeal brought by William Lynch, of Cappamore, County Limerick, from a decision of the magistrates at Murroe Petty Sessions, County Limerick, on the 8th of November last, imposing upon him a fine of £1 for having on the 20th July last sold to Sergeant Timothy McCarthy, R.I.C., inspector under the Foods and Drugs Act, 2lb. of Indian meal, purchased as a sample, which had been deprived of portion of its oils and fats. For the defence it was stated that the meal sold was not intended for human food, but for cattle, there being two kinds of Indian meal, the only difference between them being that one was ground finer than the other. The abstraction of oil had been going on for many years in America, and also in Ireland; and up to the present time the part of the oil taken in the germ from the berry was given back to the meal ground from the yellow part of the berry.

When the case was reached,

Mr. Phelps (instructed by Messrs. Fitt and Co.), who appeared for the defendant, said they did not intend to argue the case. The conviction would accordingly stand, and they would pay the taxed costs of the hearing in the court below.

The case was accordingly struck out.

ROADS IN PEMBROKE DISTRICT.

ACTION AGAINST THE URBAN DISTRICT COUNCIL.

Yesterday, in the Probate Court, Dublin, before Mr. Justice Pim and a city special jury, an action was heard in which Thomas Costello, of Shelbourne road, hackney car owner and driver, claimed £75 damages for injuries to his horse and car, caused, as alleged, by the negligence of the Pembroke U.D.C. on the 25th August, 1914, by reason of the absence of proper maintenance and repairs of Northumberland road, by which it was in a dangerous condition, and thus brought about the damage complained of. The defendants denied the cause of action, pleaded contributory negligence, and, further, that the driver of the horse and car was aware of the slippery condition of the road.

Counsel for the plaintiff—Mr. Gibson, K.C., and Mr. Hubert C. Hamilton (instructed by Mr. A. Lane Joynt).

For the defendants—Serjeant McSweeney, Mr. Hanna, K.C., and Mr. Lardner, M.P. (instructed by Messrs. D. and T. Fitzgerald).

Mr. Gibson, K.C., in opening the case for the plaintiff, said that, although the sum involved in the damages claimed was small, still it was one of great public interest, having regard to the issues involved. The defendants, who were the authority who were responsible for the condition of the roads, thought well to use in their construction a substance known as bitromat. The result was that since that system was adopted an enormous number of accidents had occurred to horses. In fact, it beggared description the fatal character of the system. Hundreds of horses had come to grief.

Serjeant McSweeny said they would willingly pay the £75 claimed if it were not for the principle it would establish.

Mr. Gibson, K.C., said that was but a poor answer to a just claim that was resisted without any justification. Evidence would be given to show that soldiers riding along the road had been thrown, and that undertakers had to complain of the difficulties and dangers of this bitromat to the horses which were being driven to funerals. Dr. Delahoyde would prove that the horse attached to his carriage was thrown owing to the defects of which the plaintiff complained. On the date in question the plaintiff was driving two officers to catch the Glasgow boat. However good the system of treating the road by the defendants might be for motors, it was fatal to horse-drawn vehicles, and on this occasion the horse was thrown, the officers and their luggage thrown to the ground, the horse's knees were cut, the shafts of the car were smashed, and the harness injured. It would be proved that this, and all the accidents which had occurred on this road, were caused by its slippery condition, caused by the use of this horrid substance, bitromat. It would be safer and wiser for the Urban Council to put their roads in a proper condition than to face a crop of actions with reference to accidents in the past and future.

Mr. Hampden Shaw, C.E., was examined by Mr. Hamilton, and proved a map of the road. The surface was hard and steely and inelastic. He had never used bitromat on a road. He considered it dangerous to horses who were in the habit of going on sets. When he went to examine this road the previous day at one o'clock he saw an accident to an Army horse. That was within a yard of where the accident in this case happened.

To Serjeant McSweeny—The road, no doubt, had a beautiful surface. He believed in trying to get dustless roads where possible.

Patrick Costello, brother of the plaintiff, examined by Mr. Gibson, K.C., said he was driving the car on the occasion in question, and was driving two gentlemen and their luggage from 76 Northumberland road. His instructions were to drive to the Glasgow boat. Before coming to St. Mary's road he heard a tram bell ring, and he turned to the left. When he got on the asphalte surface the horse fell, and was injured. Witness and the two gentlemen were thrown to the ground, and the harness and car damaged. Before the accident the horse and car earned between £9 and £10 a month.

Have you seen other accidents on this road? Yes, I picked up a horse which had fallen, although it had rubber shoes on. Witness detailed other accidents he had seen on various occasions.

To Serjeant McSweeny, witness said when he went to the Town Hall to complain and saw Mr. Manly, the latter told him to go to the contractor, and the contractor told him he was not responsible, and to go back to Mr. Manly.

Wm. Buckley, conductor, in the employment of the Tramway Company, in reply to Mr. Hamilton, said he saw the horse and car and driver on the bitromat after the accident, and gave what assistance he could. During his experience after this laying of the road he had seen numerous accidents to hay carts and other vehicles.

Thomas Costello, the plaintiff, examined by Mr. Gibson, K.C., said he earned with the horse and car about £9 or £10 a month. He described the injuries they had received. The horse was badly cut, and was treated at the Veterinary College. Afterwards it was of no use for a car, but was used under a cab. Before the bitromat was laid on it was safe, but it was unsafe for horses since then. He had seen many accidents to vehicles on the road. He saw six horses down at the one time. He saw cavalry horses fall on the road, several loads of hay, and also four horses under a hearse came down when on the way to a funeral. All those happened on the bitromat.

Dr. O'Connell J. Delahoyde, examined by Mr. Gibson, K.C., said on 27th March, last year, he was being driven in his brougham into town along the Northumberland road. When near Haddington road the horse fell on the asphalte. It had never fallen before. The horse was a good and sure-footed animal. On the 8th of April he was again driving towards Kingstown, and on leaving the tram track the horse fell. He put in a claim for injury to the carriage, and received a formal acknowledgment. There was no injury done to the horse. The surface of the road was very slippery, and was quite unlike that of Merrion square or Henry street.

To Mr. Justice Pim—Witness said as a rule he avoided this road, and went by Shelbourne road.

Mr. Keith Malcolmson, examined by Mr. Gibson, K.C., gave evidence that he was constantly in the habit of driving in and about Dublin. The character of the Northumberland road had been changed by the application of bitromat.

What is the condition of the road now? It is absolutely dangerous for horses.

Had you an accident there yourself? Yes. I was driving a pair of horses from Kingsbridge, and just at Lansdowne lane one of the horses came down on the bitromat, and was very seriously injured.

Have you seen accidents on this road? Frequently, day after day. The accidents were to drays and hay carts. Before the use of the bitromat the road was much safer.

To Serjeant McSweeny—He had no doubt the existence of so many motor cars created a new problem that should be dealt with, and that it was desirable to keep the dust down. Driving in London on asphalte was perfectly safe.

To Mr. Justice Pim—Since the bitromat was put down the road was getting more slippery, and he kept off it as much as he could.

Mrs. Butler Knox, who resides on Northumberland road, was also examined, and gave evidence as to accidents which had occurred. In two cases soldiers were thrown, and the horses and men injured. She saw hay carts and many others down.

Miss Nora Newett, who also lives on Northumberland road, in answer to Mr. Gibson, K.C., said before the putting down of the bitromat she had never noticed any accidents. Since then they were frequent.

James Doyle, hackney car proprietor, gave evidence to show the condition of the road. The horse he was driving had the legs taken from under him owing to its state, which was now dangerous. He complained at the Town Hall.

Mr. Michael Fagan, publican, was also examined, and said that in consequence of the number of accidents occurring on the road he kept a supply of remedies to treat injured horses, and frequently applied the remedies with beneficial results.

The further hearing was adjourned until this morning.

BELFAST PEDIGREE CASE.

In the Court of Appeal, Dublin, yesterday, judgment was delivered by the Lord Chancellor, Lord Justice Ronan, and Lord Justice Molony in a case of Morgan, deceased; Evans v. Havlin and Stewart. It was an appeal by Mrs. Margaret Evans, of Campbell's row, Belfast, from an order of the Master of the Rolls in an action brought by her against Edward Havlin, hardware merchant, Winetavern street, Belfast, and Hugh Stewart, also of Belfast, in the matter of the administration of the estate of James Morgan, late of Belfast, who died in 1890, leaving ten houses in Raglan street, Belfast, to his son, Patrick, for life, and on his death to his issue, and in default of issue for the support and maintenance of Roman Catholic clergymen connected with certain churches in Belfast. He also left eight houses in the same street to his grandson, James Morgan, for life, with similar gifts over. The suit had been amended by adding Rev. D. McCashin, as representing the clergy, as co-plaintiff.

Mrs. Evans claimed to be a descendant of James Morgan, sen., the testator, and as such entitled to certain of the houses in Raglan street. The decision of the Master of the Rolls was against her claim.

The Court of Appeal now held in favour of the appellant, and the case was sent back to the Master of the Rolls, with a ruling that she had proved to the satisfaction of the court that she was related to the testator.

Mr. Herbert Wilson, K.C., and Mr. J. P. Kerr (instructed by Mr. H. E. Thompson) appeared for the appellant; Mr. Healy, K.C., M.P., and Mr. Wm. McGrath (instructed by Mr. A. A. Macaulay) for the respondents; and Mr. T. Henry Maxwell (instructed by Mr. J. M. Maxwell) for the Commissioners of Charitable Donations and Bequests.

ALLEGED MALICIOUS PROSECUTION.

Yesterday in King's Bench Division, Dublin, before Mr. Justice Boyd, in an action in which Miss Mary Ann Manley, of Gowran, Co. Kilkenny, is plaintiff, and Mr. Lawrence T. Cogan, of Clonturk House, Richmond road, Dublin, grocer, is defendant,

Mr. Wm. J. Gleeson (instructed by Mr. Lidwell) applied for an order for discovery of documents. The plaintiff claimed £500 damages for malicious prosecution and false imprisonment, and £58 money had and received by defendant and paid him by plaintiff under duress. The defence was that the defendant acted with reasonable and probable cause for belief that plaintiff had stolen his money.

Mr. Justice Boyd granted the application.

Mr. Morgan Byrne (instructed by Mr. W. E. Garland) applied for, and obtained a similar order on behalf of the defendant.

THE GAME OF "HOUSE."

KING'S BENCH DECLARE IT ILLEGAL.

In the Southern Police Court, Dublin, yesterday, Mr. Swifte, K.C., delivered judgment in a case in which Inspector Barrett, of the D.M.P., charged William Flynn that on 4th March, 1915, at 49 Cuffe street, he did unlawfully have the care and management of, and did assist in, conducting the business of the Bricklayers' Hall, then being opened, kept, and used for unlawful gaming being carried on therein. When the case was first heard the police gave evidence that what is known as the game of "house" was being conducted in this hall. On the evidence before him, Mr. Swifte dismissed the case, and subsequently, at the request of Inspector Barrett, a case was stated for the opinion of the King's Bench Division, and was heard by the Lord Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Madden, and Mr. Justice Boyd on 23rd November, 1915, and they unanimously decided that the playing of the game of "house" was unlawful, and that the magistrate should have convicted, and accordingly made an order directing the magistrate to discharge the dismiss, to enter a continuance, and proceed according to law, having regard to their declaration.

Mr. Rearden (instructed by Mr. Robertson, of the Chief Crown Solicitor's Office) appeared on behalf of the prosecution; and Mr. E. H. Burne (of Gerald Byrne and Co.) defended.

When the case was mentioned in the Police Court yesterday Mr. Swifte asked Mr. Rearden how the King's Bench Division got over the question that the summons was not under the Lottery Acts. He was of the opinion that this game was a lottery, but that, the summons not being made, under the Lottery Acts, he could not deal with it.

Mr. Rearden said the King's Bench Division decided that, the fact having been proved that an unlawful game was being carried on in this building, it was not necessary to proceed under the Lottery Acts. They merely decided that the game was a lottery, and, therefore, illegal, no matter where carried on.

Mr. Swifte—The stoppage of this lottery will be sure to have a good effect on the public morals of the city.

Mr. Rearden said that he believed, and the police were satisfied, that the game of "house" was the cause of a great deal of suffering amongst the poor of the city, and that the stoppage of this gambling among the working classes will have an extremely good effect.

Mr. Swifte—The case simply comes before me now to fix the penalty. I think a merely nominal penalty will suffice, as these men thought they were justified in what they were doing.

Mr. Rearden said he agreed, but would ask that a contemptuous penalty should not be fixed, and suggested £1 as an equitable amount, as he did not ask for costs.

Mr. Burne said there was no evidence of reckless gambling, and it was shown that a workingman could amuse himself for an evening at the cost of sixpence.

Mr. Swifte—But he might lose a great deal more.

A fine of £1, with costs, was imposed.

NATIONAL SCHOOL INSPECTOR'S ESTATE.

In the Chancery Division, Dublin, yesterday, before Mr. Justice Barton, an action came on for hearing in which Alice Meenan Sullivan, of Belclare, Temple Gardens, Rathmines, Dublin, was plaintiff, and John Sullivan, of Miltown-Malbay, Co. Clare, was defendant. The plaintiff, as executrix of her deceased husband, William Sullivan, retired inspector of National Schools, sought to have his personal estate administered by the Court, and the trusts of his will carried out. It appeared that the late Mr. Sullivan was married twice. He first married, in the year 1870, one, Mary Meenan, who died in 1880. Three years later he married the plaintiff, Alice Meenan, sister of his deceased wife, the marriage taking place according to the rites of the Roman Catholic Church. On various dates between 1883 and 1907, when the Deceased's Wife's Sister Act was passed, he invested sums amounting in all to £4,891 0s. 9d. in the joint names of himself and his wife, Alice. That Act legalised marriage with a deceased wife's sister, and had a certain retrospective effect. Subsequent to the passing of the Act he continued to invest money in the joint names of his wife and himself, these latter monies amounting at the date of his death, in June, 1914, to £1,748 1s. 5d. He had other personal property of the value of £1,858 17s. 2d. By his will he bequeathed to his wife the sum of £3,000 absolutely, and also gave her a life interest in the residue, and after her death portion of the residue was to be devoted to the promotion of the study of the Irish language. He made severel other bequests, including £150 each to the children of his brother John, of whom the defendant is one. The plaintiff claimed to be entitled as survivor to the sums invested in the joint names of herself and her deceased husband as her absolute property as being in the nature of advancements to her. The defendant challenged the joint investments, submitting that they were the property of the deceased.

Counsel for the plaintiff—Mr. S. L. Brown, K.C.; Mr. P. Lynch, K.C.; Mr. J. H. Pigot, K.C., and Mr. Hugh Kennedy (instructed by Mr Daniel Purcell).

For the defendant—Mr. D. S. Henry, K.C., and Mr. Murnaghan (instructed by Mr. James Riordan).

For the Commissioners of Charities—Mr. T. Henry Maxwell (instructed by Mr. J. M. Maxwell).

The plaintiff having been examined, counsel for the defendant accepted her testimony, and admitted that the sums standing in the joint names were by advancement and passed to her as survivor, but contended that, inasmuch as the testator by his will directed payments to be made out of the joint shares, the plaintiff was bound to elect either to take under the will or to be solely benefited by the stocks and shares in the joint names.

As the case turned upon the question of election, Mr. Justice Barton reserved judgment.

INSURANCE CONTRIBUTIONS ON DOMESTIC SERVANTS.

In the King's Bench Division, Dublin, yesterday, before the Lord Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Gibson, and Mr. Justice Dodd, the case of the King (O'Connor) v. the Justices of the County of Cork came on for hearing. It was an application on behalf of John O'Connor, farmer, of Ballyroe, Charleville, for an absolute order of certiorari, quashing a decision of the magistrates at Charleville Petty Sessions on the 25th of October last with regard to the payment of insurance contributions in respect of Bridget McNamara, a domestic servant in his employment.

Mr. Moriarty (instructed by Mr. Patrick Ryan) appeared on behalf of Mr. O'Connor in support of the application.

The Solicitor-General and Mr. Phelps (instructed by Mr. Hugh Horan) for the Insurance Commissioners.

It appeared that Mr. O'Connor was fined 2/6, with 13/- costs, for failing to pay a contribution of 4½d. for the week commencing June 28th, 1915, with the alternative of a week's imprisonment, without hard labour. He was also ordered to pay 13/10½, the amount of 37 contributions for weeks commencing 1st February, 1915, which has been already paid, the girl not having entered into the employment till the 1st of March. It was stated that the payments or stamps had been given to the Inspector of St. Colman's National Health Insurance Society, and that the defendant, relying on the representations of the Inspector, did not attend court, but his solicitor happened to be present, and put his case before the magistrates. An additional objection to the validity of the order was alleged bias on the part of one of the magistrates, but that point was not pressed.

The Solicitor-General said they agreed not to insist upon the portion of the order relating to the 37 contributions.

The Court accordingly quashed that part of the magistrates' order, and affirmed the conviction with regard to the other part, directing that each party should abide their own costs.

DUBLIN CITY SESSIONS.

The Right Hon. the Recorder of Dublin continued the business of the City Sessions yesterday in the Courthouse, Green street.

LARCENY BY DOMESTIC SERVANT.

Margaret Furlong, a young domestic servant, was tried on a charge of having in November last stolen £80 and some jewellery from Mrs. Buckley and her daughter Christina, at 65 South Circular road.

Mr. E. Swayne (instructed by Mr. Gerald Byrne) appeared for the prisoner.

The jury found the prisoner guilty, and sentence was reserved until February 16th, in order that she might have an opportunity of telling where the stolen money is.

Mr. Dudley White, K.C., counsel for the Crown, entered a nolle prosequi in the case in which Peter Draper was charged with having embezzled a sum of £28 7/8 of the money of the Carpenters' Society, of which he was treasurer. It appeared that the society had entered into an agreement with Draper to pay back the money by regular instalments, and that when he, after having paid some, stopped, they brought him before the magistrate, who committed him for trial.

James Kirwan was tried on a charge of having embezzled £22 12/7 of the funds of No. 7 Branch of the Dublin Carpenters' and Joiners' Society on various dates between the 10th of March and September 30th last year.

Mr. Swayne (instructed by Mr. Gerald Byrne) appeared for the accused, and Mr. Alfred Coffey (instructed by Mr. James Brady) held a watching brief on behalf of the society.

The jury found the prisoner guilty, with a strong recommendation to mercy.

The Recorder allowed the defendant to stand out until March, and in the meantime he would expect him to make full restitution to the branch.

ALLEGED MANSLAUGHTER.

In the case of Mary Early, who was charged with having caused, by neglect, the death of an illegitimate child that had been entrusted to her to nurse, a nolle prosequi was entered.

The Court adjourned till this morning.

DUBLIN STOCKBROKER'S ACTION.

CLAIM AGAINST A DRAPER.

PURCHASE OF RUSSIAN SHARES.

The trial was resumed in the King's Bench Division, Dublin, yesterday, before Mr. Justice Kenny and a city special jury, of the action brought by Patrick W. Tunney, stockbroker, Anglesea street, Dublin, against Joseph Boyers, draper, North Earl street, Dublin, on a claim for £1,510, alleged to have been due in respect of certain stockbroking transactions. The question in dispute arose in reference to the validity of rules made by the London Stock Exchange, in view of the declaration of war. The defendant purchased from the plaintiff certain Russian mining shares, settlement for which, in the ordinary course, would have taken place on 29th July, 1914, but owing to the moratorium the settlement was fixed for 18th November. The Stock Exchange made rules whereby the shares were written down to the mean price of 27th July. The plaintiff, as defendant's stockbroker, paid the differences down to the mean prices, and also paid the contango settled by the Stock Exchange rules. The defendant contended, however, that the plaintiff should not have paid, as the rules were ultra vires, and he also relied on the Gaming Acts. This plea was subsequently withdrawn.

Counsel for the plaintiff—The Solicitor-General; Mr. S. L. Brown, K.C., and Mr. Marnan (instructed by Messrs. Little and Cullen); and for the defendant—Serjeant Sullivan, Mr. Hanna, K.C., and Mr. Leonard (instructed by Mr. M. Good, LL.D.).

The plaintiff gave further evidence in support of his claim, and in reply to a juror said that during all the transactions the defendant never complained to him. The correspondence would show that the defendant was perfectly satisfied with all the transactions.

George Benjamin Tidd, a member of the Committee of the London Stock Exchange, stated that he got orders from Mr. Tunney to buy the shares. The differences were paid for, and the shares were carried over by his firm. If the Stock Exchange rules had not been made the defendant's liability would be almost double in respect of Russo-Asiatic Shares. The emergency rules were in ease of the banks, and the brokers, and the clients, and under the conditions set forth in the rules purchasers could carry over the shares until twelve months after the termination of the war.

In reply to Mr. Justice Kenny, who asked witness what would have happened if Mr. Tunney went into the Bankruptcy Court, he said that his liability would continue in London with the dealers. In the course of further evidence witness said that the "bought" and "continuation" notes sent to Mr. Tunney were in the ordinary form, and according to the custom of the London Stock Exchange.

Cross-examined by Serjeant Sullivan, witness said that before the war a great number of gentlemen were selling shares that they had not got. They would be compelled, however, to deliver the shares when called upon, or pay the differences.

Serjeant Sullivan—Are speculative transactions possible now

Witness—No time bargains are allowed now.

Serjeant Sullivan—It is well that an end has been put to this plague.

The Solicitor-General—You call dealing on the Stock Exchange a plague. Your standard is too high for anything.

Serjeant Sullivan—Every form of gambling is a blister on the life of the nation.

Witness—Speculation is not gambling. You will not have any investment business without speculation.

Mr. Justice Kenny—I don't think anything you do will ever stop speculation.

Witness further stated that his firm purchased the shares in London for a jobber. That was the usual way in which such transactions were carried out.

Plaintiff's case then closed.

Serjeant Sullivan said that he intended to ask his lordship to direct the jury on the ground that on the evidence as it stood at that stage the plaintiff was not entitled to any indemnity, as the moneys paid by him were not expended in the execution of the mandate of the defendant. Counsel then opened the case on behalf of the defendant, and said that one of the main questions to which the jury would have to direct their attention was whether in these transactions the plaintiff incurred the liability in respect of which he was now suing within the scope of the mandate which he received from the defendant. The second question was, whether, whatever had been the form of the transactions between the plaintiff and Mr. Tidd, the agreement between the plaintiff and the defendant was not an agreement that the plaintiff would arrange a gambling transaction for the defendant. In a similar case tried some time ago the judge said it was a matter of deep regret that the law permitted stockbrokers to aid a great number of improvident men to ruin themselves in this degrading occupation of trying to get their neighbour's money without earning it. In the present case they were dealing with transactions which commenced in July, 1914, and previous to that the plaintiff well knew that the defendant was in the habit of indulging in speculation on the Stock Exchange. In January, 1914, Mr. Tunney was specifically employed to arrange transactions in differences in respect of two main stocks, and was specifically informed that the stocks were not to be taken up, but that Mr. Tunney would have to arrange that they would be carried over on differences. He was employed solely for that purpose, and the jury would have to inquire whether there was an agreement with Tunney to arrange to speculate in differences. Even as an agent he absolutely contravened the terms of his employment. This was a gambling transaction. It was a pity that money invested in this dishonest manner could not be withdrawn and used in honest pursuits, and that the ability and intelligence of the many business men engaged in it could not be utilised in a worthier sphere. If the money were withdrawn and used to capitalise industries many more wheels would be set humming, and many more men would be earning honest money, and a blister on the commercial life of the community would be removed. Counsel went on to say that plaintiff himself purchased 200 of the 400 Kyshtim Shares belonging to the defendant, and did not mention the matter to his client. The defendant had to pay plaintiff's commission, and the agent's commission, and also plaintiff's commission for selling himself 200 shares. Counsel, in conclusion, withdrew the plea under the Gaming Act.

Mr. Tidd was recalled, and stated that the price he charged to Mr. Tunney was made up of the price paid by his firm for the shares and the commission. The commission was according to the ordinary scale used in dealing with Dublin brokers. The scale was half the Dublin rates of commission. The purchase money on the shares was nearly £6,400. The total commission charged on the Russo-Asiatic shares was £29 7/6 and on the Kyshtims £4 13/9. Witness handed in a list showing the amount of commission charged on each transaction.

In reply to Serjeant Sullivan, witness said that the list was prepared from a telegram received from his office in London the previous evening.

The further cross-examination of witness was deferred to permit him to produce his jobbers' ledgers.

The defendant gave evidence to the effect that in all his dealings with regard to the Russo-Asiatic shares he told the plaintiff that if he was able to carry over the shares to buy them. He had had transactions of an investment character with Mr. Tunney. Up to the time the war broke out he did not know where Mr. Tunney was dealing in the shares, and he was not aware that anyone else was getting commission except the plaintiff. On 24th July he held 600 Russo-Asiatics and 400 Kyshtims, and they were ready for settlement on 13th August. He did not authorise him to pay any differences on the carry over on shares in November, but, on the contrary, he warned him not to do so. He never told him what would happen if he did not pay up, but he pointed out the regulations made by the Stock Exchange. Until that morning he was not aware that 200 of his Kyshtim shares had been transferred to Mr. Tunney.

Cross-examined by the Solicitor-General, defendant said that he had been buying shares at intervals on the Stock Exchange for a number of years. In July, 1914, he bought 200 Tough Oaks at 19/-, and paid for them at settlement. Mr. Tunney paid him when he owed him anything. He thought that under the circumstances it was not dishonourable to refuse to pay when the shares had fallen.

Didn't you buy the shares hoping they would rise? Yes.

Did Mr. Tunney pay you when the differences were in your favour? Yes.

And you won't pay him now because the shares are gone down? I don't know about that.

You know you are pleading the Gaming Act, and that the effect is that you will take all the rises from Mr. Tunney and you won't pay the falls? He has got all the falls so far. Defendant further admitted that only for the Stock Exchange rules he would have had to pay a much larger sum than the amount claimed. It was his opinion that the rules were made to suit the "bears." They did not relieve the purchasers in the long run—after the war was over.

If these rules had not been made what would have happened to you? Do you know you would have to pay £4,200 on November 4th? That is correct according to the circumstances.

In further cross examination defendant said he did not complain of the transfer of 200 Kyshtim shares to plaintiff, and he was not charging him with dishonesty. He did not deny that plaintiff offered that if he (defendant) paid £300 on account he would stand out of the balance. All through the transactions the conduct of Mr. Tunney was that of an upright and honourable man.

The defendant's case then closed.

The Solicitor-General asked his lordship for a direction in favour of the plaintiff.

Serjeant Sullivan pressed for a direction in favour of the defendant, on the ground that plaintiff had contravened the terms of his mandate.

Mr. Justice Kenny said that he would give a direction in favour of the plaintiff. When the account was furnished in November defendant took no exception whatever to the amount, and only asked that time should be given. The only question to be considered was whether the plaintiff acted within his mandate and carried out his contract. His contract was to act for Mr. Boyers in the purchase of these two lots of shares. As far as he (his lordship) could see, the only grievance which the defendant thought he had was against the gentlemen of the Government who drew up the moratorium rules, which, undoubtedly, were in his favour, in so far as they gave him time for payment and relieved him from pressure, and enabled him to carry on his business in the meantime without having to make payment of these enormous sums. There was no foundation for the allegations made against Mr. Tunney by Serjeant Sullivan. The defendant had a most intimate knowledge of all the transactions, and so far as could be seen from his evidence he was not a gentleman who was likely to be taken in by anyone or be ignorant of the fact that when a Dublin broker had to employ a London agent the latter was to get something as recompense. He (his lordship) was of opinion that the plaintiff had not exceeded the scope of his mandate, and accordingly entered judgment in his favour for the amount claimed.

A stay was granted, defendant undertaking to lodge £500 in Court within a week.

SUCCESSFUL PROPERTY SALE

Yesterday, at their well-known auction rooms in Westmoreland street, Messrs. Battersby and Co. submitted a ground rent of £64 6/9 per annum out of 21 houses in St. Clement's road, Drumcondra. There was a good attendance of investors, and after lively competition, Mr. Joseph M'Dermott, solicitor, of Messrs. William Mooney and Son, 16 Fleet street, was declared the purchaser, in trust, at £940, and auction fees 5 per cent. Messrs. Crowley and Bolger, solicitors, Lower Sackville street, has carriage of sale.

DUBLIN PORT AND DOCKS BOARD.

£5,000 LOST IN THREE MONTHS.

CHAIRMAN RE-ELECTED.

The Lord Mayor presided during the first part of the weekly meeting of the Dublin Port and Docks Board yesterday. The Board was specially summoned to elect a Chairman and Vice-Chairman of the Board for the coming year. There also attended:—Sir James Murphy, Bart., D.L.; Sir J. P. Griffith, Alderman James Moran, Messrs. T. M. O'Beirne, J. Vaughan, W. P. Partridge, R. K. Gamble, W. Crowe, F. H. Hall, T. R. McCullagh, W Wallace, M. Goodbody, B. J. Martin, G. Byrne, D. Barry, H. B. Burgess, W. H. Litchfield, S. S. McCormick, W. Baird, J. Hollwey, and W. Hewat.

Mr. Burgess suggested that the right course, in view of the fact that no elections or re-elections of members had taken place this year, would be to re-elect the Chairman of last year for the coming year. He moved that Mr. Wm. Crowe be re-elected Chairman.

Mr. Hall thought the proposal was practical and sensible, and seconded the motion.

Mr. Wm. Crowe was re-elected, Mr. W. P. Partridge dissenting from the motion.

Mr. Crowe took the chair, and thanked the members for their mark of renewed confidence. He appreciated the compliment particularly as coming from Mr. Burgess and the shipping section. It was the usual practice for the shipping and trading sections to elect Chairmen alternately. His election established an entente cordiale between the sections. The Board found themselves in smoother waters than twelve months ago, but the outlook was not so promising in some respects for the Board during the coming year. The trade of the port had suffered very seriously, especially during the latter part of last year, and was not likely to improve during the continuation of the war. From the collector he understood that there was a very serious drop in the revenue from cross-Channel tonnage dues, something over £5,000. Most of that occurred in the last quarter. Larger vessels had been taken for Government service, and smaller vessels substituted. Strange to say, there was an increase in the tonnage dues from oversea trade—(hear, hear)—about £1,000. Owing to a great scarcity of tonnage, and consequent abnormal freights, he was afraid that there would be a drop in revenue, notwithstanding the increased levies. He strongly advocated a continuance of a policy of economy. (Hear, hear.) It would be necessary to conserve their funds to meet their liabilities, and he was sure he could claim the members' support in that direction.

Mr. O'Beirne said that the Corporation section had never had a look in, even by courtesy, for the offices of Chairman and Vice-Chairman since Alderman Cotton was Chairman. He proposed, on behalf of the section "below the gangway," that Alderman Moran be elected Vice-Chairman.

The Lord Mayor seconded the propostion. A better feeling, he said, had developed between the Corporation and the Board, and it would be an act of grace to elect Alderman Moran. He felt that large ratepayers should be given some representation.

Sir John Griffith and other members supported the motion.

Mr. Hewat said that he had hoped that Mr. Dollar would have been a member of the Board that day, and would have been elected Vice-Chairman.

Mr. O'Beirne said that if Mr. Dollar had been there he would not have proposed Alderman Moran, who would have facilitated Mr. Dollar's election.

Mr. Burgess said that the proposal was a little hard on the shippers, who largely provided the sinews of war. In the ordinary course they would have elected the Chairman this year, and would now be out of it for two or three years. He could only appeal to the traders and the Corporation to have mercy on the shippers. (Laughter.)

Mr. Baird said that he would not oppose the election of Alderman Moran, but he had hoped that Mr. Dollar would have been co-opted that day and elected Vice-Chairman next week.

Alderman Moran was unanimously elected Vice-Chairman, and, on his motion, seconded by Mr. Barry, thanks was accorded the Chairman for his services last year.

Mr. Hewat proposed, and Mr. Burgess seconded, a motion that Mr. Dollar, who was Vice-Chairman last year till he left the Board, be co-opted a member of the Board to fill the vacancy in the shipping section for the current year.

The Chairman said that he had been informed that Mr. Dollar was qualified to act as a shipping member.

Some members questioned Mr. Dollar's qualification, and a discussion on the point ensued.

The Chairman said that the collector informed him that the Duke Shipping Company had paid £500 in tonnage dues during the year ended August 31, which would qualify Mr. Dollar for membership.

The motion was carried unanimously.

A letter from the general manager of the Great Southern and Western Railway Company on the Board's recommendation as to charge for wagons using tramway lines on the North Wall Extension was read.

A member referred to the anticipated receipts as a "miserable sixpence per wagon."

The Chairman said that they were expected to amount to £800 a year.

The matter, after a little discussion, was referred to a Committee, to whom the Law Agent was to report.

A letter was received from the Dublin Cattle Salesmasters' Association regarding a desired restoration of through rates on live stock to Dublin, "as their absence causes considerable financial loss to individual members of the trade."

The Engineer reported that during a gale No. 2 perch went adrift, and was discovered, sawn up into pieces, in a boathouse belonging to Mr. Denis Pack Beresford.

The Clerk said the matter was most serious. A new perch was being erected at a cost of £35. Mr. Beresford wrote that he had handed over a few bits of iron from the wrecked perch. (The Clerk first read it "wretched perch," which aroused laughter.) If he had thought the wreckage was of value he would have reported finding it, but it all appeared rotten. As other people were removing it, he saved what he could.

The matter was referred to the Law Agent.

The Dublin Dockyard Company, Ltd., applied for the use of land adjoining No. 2 slipway for laying down a small steamer. It would be occupied for about nine months, as a temporary expedient.

A Committee was appointed to discuss the matter with the company and report to the Board.

The minutes of the Finance Committee recorded the receipt of a letter from Messrs. Goodbody and Webb, suggesting the sale of War Loan and purchase of Consols. The Committee did not recommend the change.

Mr. Hewat said that previous advice was to sell Consols and buy War Loan. Their stockbrokers must be under the impression that the Board wanted to speculate.

Our Portrait is of Mrs. TREVIS who writes as follows:

"I suffered with a diseased shock bone for nearly a year, and for which I had three operations in hospital, all of which were absolutely useless. One day quite by accident I read in a newspaper of the wonderful cures 'Clarke's Blood Mixture' had done for others, so I at once decided to try it for my case. I had been troubled a great deal with discharge from the bone, and all previous remedies that I tried failed to stop it. I am thankful to tell after taking 10 bottles I am completely cured, and am now in the best of health. My one regret is that I did not hear of 'Clarke's Blood Mixture' before, for I feel confident I should have been spared much suffering through operations. AUSTRALIAN TRADE DISPUTES.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)
MELBOURNE, THURSDAY.

The wheat lumpers have rejected the compromise offered by the employers, and Mr. Hagelthorn, the Minister of Agriculture, threatens to bring farmers to Williamstown unless work is resumed to-day. Mr. Hughes does not believe the statement which has been made, that goods are shipped to Germany through Batavia, and desires evidence to enable him to take action. The Commonwealth has prohibited the export of coal without written permission of the Minister of Trade and Commerce. Mr. Hughes strongly deprecated the efforts made to extend the Broken Hill strike to the Port Pirie and Cockle Creek smelters. At Broken Hill everything is quiet, and business is at a standstill. All the amalgamated men are out.

The fête, which is being held under the patronage of Lady Wimborne, will be continued to-morrow, when it will be opened by Lady Arnott at a quarter to 3 o'clock, and there will be a complete change of programme.

BLINDED SOLDIERS' FUND.

The first of a series of five drawingroom concerts in aid of the fund for blinded soldiers was given last evening at 61 Fitzwilliam square, by kind permission of Dr. and Mrs. Travers Smith. There was a large attendance, and the concert was very successful. The artistes who took part were:—Mrs. Levitt (soprano), Miss Sophy Solomons (mezzo-soprano), Mrs. Boxwell (pianist), Mr. T. W. Hall (baritone), Mr. Joseph Schofield ('cellist), and M. Carlo Berckmans (tenor). The accompanists were Mrs. Leventon, Mrs. Duncan, and Mrs. Travers Smith.

SPORTING NEWS.

CHANTICLEER'S NOTES.

(SPECIAL TELEGRAM.)

WINDSOR, THURSDAY NIGHT.

During the next two days racing at Windsor will appeal strongly to followers of the National Hunt sport, and consequently a large attendance is likely to put in an appearance on the Rays, especially if the weather proves as fine as it has been to-day. The equine arrival list already points to fields being good, and many more horses will arrive in the morning, so that the sport should furnish plenty of interest. My fancies for to-morrow are:—

Eton Hurdle—Blue Danube.
Friday Steeplechase—Little Brother.
Datchet Steeplechase—Minster Vale.
Island Hurdle—Blind Hookey.
Mill Maiden Hurdle—Ambassador.
Suffolk Steeplechase—St. Julian.

WARD UNION STAGHOUNDS.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

There was an excellent day's sport on Wednesday, when the meet was at Kilrue. Proceedings commenced at Peacockstown, and hounds hunted across the Lough of Ballyhack to Loughlinstown, and straight over the road by Mr. Malcomson's house and Gunstown to Caulstown. Bearing gradually to the right, with Ballymagillam and Craddoxtown on the immediate left, they ran by Herbertstown to Fairyhouse railway bridge, in close proximity to which the stag was caught after a good hound hunt of thirty minutes. There was some delay in finding the deer van, but ultimately it was caught up at Caulstown, where the second stag was enlarged. With a great improvement in scent, hounds went away very fast by Nutstown and Mullinam to Ballyhack and on to Peacockstown, where they crossed the Ratoath-Kilbride road, and down to and across the Kilrue lane. The exceedingly heavy going made it a case of "bellows to mend" with several who were left in attendance, but the big dogs kept hard at it across Upper Fleenstown, where they bore to the right through Balfestown and Dardistown to Baytown. They next crossed Irishtown and Spricklestown to Ballymacarney, and the Ward River to the Ward, where this great gallop ended in a safe capture after forty minutes of the very best.

GOLF.

CASTLE CLUB (LADIES' BRANCH).—In the monthly medal competition, played on Wednesday, the best cards were returned by Mrs. Neale (108-25-83) and Mrs. Lyburn (108-19-89).

BILLIARDS.

INMAN v. GRAY.
BIG ITEMS BY GRAY.

At Leicester square, London, yesterday afternoon Gray made up a little lost ground against Inman in their match of 18,000 up, level, for £200. The Australian averaged 30 for an aggregate of 651, to Inman's figures of 28 and 585 respectively. The best breaks were 93, 136, and 96 by Inman, and 184 (full), 69, and 363 (unfinished) by Gray. Interval scores:—

Inman	4,652
Gray (in play)	3,501

In great form at night, Gray totalled 993, and averaged 88, to the 600 and average of 74 of Inman. The Australian raised his incomplete break of the afternoon to 533, and followed with 52 and 468 (327 off the red). Inman's best runs were 90, 166, 102, and 109. Closing scores:—

Inman (in play)	5,252
Gray	4,294

LONDON TOURNAMENT.
AIKEN v. FALKINER.

After being behind his points at the afternoon session of this heat with Aiken at Burroughes' Hall, London, yesterday, Falkiner gave a brilliant display in the evening, and ended well up to his scheduled points. He left off on Wednesday with 17 (unfinished), and this he ran into 109, and followed it up with breaks of 106 and 83, but Aiken countered with 59 and a soundly played 252, and with Falkiner able to do but little, the Scottish champion was responsible for further efforts of 140, 148, and 51 (unfinished). Interval scores:—

Falkiner	5,083
Aiken (in play)	3,805

In the evening Falkiner quickly wiped out his deficiency, as with Aiken unable to add further to his unfinished item, the younger player made a superb 249, and then went on with 82, 193, and 102, remaining in hand with five (unfinished). Aiken was by no means idle, being responsible for items of 126 and 63. Closing scores:—

Falkiner (rec. 1,250) (in play)	5,756
Aiken (rec. 800)	4,001

AMATEUR CHAMPIONSHIP.
MR. J. GRAHAM v. MR. J. D. FORSYTH.

The fourth heat in this competition at Ormes', Soho square, London, yesterday was between Messrs. J. Graham and J. Dudley Forsyth. In the afternoon Forsyth led till well past the 300 mark, when Graham caught him, and at the interval was 73 ahead. Graham averaged 12, and his rival 10. Graham's best breaks were 20 (three times), 26, 22, 28, 30 (twice), and 120. Forsyth made 24, 27, 40, 25, 23, and 57. Interval scores:—

Graham	500
Forsyth	437

Graham was in great form at night, totalling his 498 points in sixty-eight minutes. He made his unfinished 12 into 100, and followed with 104, 85, and 30, whilst Forsyth's best was 18. Graham averaged 16 per innings. Final scores:—

Graham	1,000
Forsyth	542

RECRUITING ADVERTISEMENTS.

In a question in the House of Commons on Tuesday, with reference to the conference of journalists at the Viceregal Lodge on the 26th October last, Mr. Ginnell asked the Chief Secretary for Ireland for what purpose two cheques from Dublin Castle—one for £3,000 and the other for £7,000—had been given to Mr. Kevin Kenny.

Mr. Kenny asks us to state that he has not received one penny piece from Dublin Castle. The Irish Recruiting Department merely utilised his advertising agency for the purpose of issuing advertisements to the Press.

A bitterly cold wind blew across the coursing ground at Dunleer yesterday, but, thanks to the strong breeze, the turf, which had been very soft after the heavy rains, was in grand order. The trials, with a few exceptions, were of fine length; in fact, the majority of the dogs were hard run. In a number of instances, however, the hares brought their pursuers back to the screen; otherwise, no fault could be found with the courses, which fully tested the merits of the greyhounds. In the Dunleer Stake Mr. P. Dalton, for the second successive season, won the Cup presented by Mr. Bernard Gannon, his Gunrunner and Rory o' the Hill dividing, and the trophy thus became his property.

MR. SHAW AND VACCINATION.

Mr. George Bernard Shaw, who was invited to speak at an Anti-Vaccination meeting at Maryborough on 16th inst., says, in the course of a letter in which he regrets his inability to be present:—"If the Irish Boards of Guardians have any doubt as to the right way to go to work to maintain the health of the community, let them send a deputation to Leicester, or to any other town which has been sensible enough to discard vaccination and substitute cleanliness and careful sanitation, and they will come back determined that there will never be another child vaccinated in Ireland if they can help it. Sanitation requires much greater knowledge, ability, and industry than paying a doctor to perform a magical incantation with a lancet, but it does its work. I cannot conclude without a reminder that the last great war in the West of Europe—the Franco-Prussian war of 1870-1—occurred when compulsory vaccination was at its height and in its glory, and when the world was promised that there could never again be an epidemic of smallpox. The result was the most appalling epidemic of smallpox on record. That was what killed vaccination; and if the members of the Irish Local Government Board have not found out that yet, the sooner they hurry up with their information the better, for it is sanitation, and sanitation alone, that will save us from a similar visitation as a result of the present war."

GOLDEN JUBILEE OF VERY REV. N. A. STAPLES.

At a Committee meeting held in Whiteabbey Library, Kildare, on the evening of Monday last, Mr. Charles Bergin, J.P., Co.C., in the chair, it was decided to make the presentation to Very Rev. Father Staples in the ancient Whiteabbey Hall at 6.30 p.m. on Sunday, 23rd inst. A concert will precede and follow the address and reply.

BELFAST NEWS.

BELFAST OFFICE, 108 ROYAL AVENUE
(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

THURSDAY NIGHT.

OLD AGE PENSIONERS SUFFOCATED.

An outbreak of fire which resulted in the death by suffocation of two old-age pensioners, Rose Ann Callaghan, 84 years, and Ellen Hargreaves, over 70 years, took place early this morning at 28 Little May street. The tragic occurrence took place in a house tenanted for a great number of years by one of the victims—Rose Ann Callaghan. A fire broke out in the house, and when the Fire Brigade extinguished the flames the old women were found dead in the same room, having been suffocated.

EPIDEMIC OF FIRES.

There were no less than five outbreaks of fire in Belfast last night and this morning. In addition to that recorded above a fire was discovered at the brickworks of Messrs. S. M'Gladery and Son, Ltd., Springfield road, Belfast, when considerable damage was done. Another fire took place at the Belfast Felt Mills, Middlepath street. Another occurred at the premises of Mr. R. Wilson, saddler and harness maker, King street. At an early hour this morning a fire was found to have broken out at the Marquis Pottery and Brickworks, Sunnyside street, Ormeau road, owned by Messrs. James Wallace and Son. The fire had obtained a firm hold on the premises before the Brigade arrived, and the strong breeze which was blowing made the work of the Brigade more difficult.

RISE IN GRAIN PRICES.

Yorkshire farmers, at Driffield yesterday, held out for advances in wheat, which now sells at 61s. 6d. for the best milling lots. Barley, oats, and beans also dearer.

Prices ruled high at Plymouth Corn Exchange, and holders were not anxious to sell. English wheat advanced 2s., maize 4s., and oats and barley 1s. per quarter, with prospects of still higher rates.

ARGENTINE CROPS.

The English Board of Agriculture and Fisheries have received the following information from the International Agricultural Institute:—The production of wheat, oats, and linseed in the Argentine in 1915-16 is estimated at 98,658,000 cwts., 21,554,000 cwts., and 20,137,000 cwts., respectively, or 9.3 per cent. and 31.8 per cent. more than the production in 1914-15 in the case of wheat and oats, and 9.1 per cent. less than last year's production in the case of linseed.

LORD LANSDOWNE'S STATEMENT.

CUSTOMS AMENDMENT BILL.

In the House of Lords yesterday, the Munitions of War (Amendment) Bill passed through Committee.

Lord Sydenham called attention to the excessive exports of cocoa from the United Kingdom to neutral countries. He said that the only way to control this trade would be to make cocoa contraband, and he could not see why this had not been done.

Lord Lansdowne, in reply, admitted that in spite of the precautions adopted by the Government in this matter, it appeared that a considerable quantity of cocoa was reaching enemy countries. The matter was engaging the most careful attention of the War Trade Department and of His Majesty's Government, and he believed they were justified in looking in certain directions for the possibility of a gradual tightening up of the precautions which they took.

In the House of Commons, the Naval Forces (Service on Shore) Bill, which proposes to make naval men serving on shore subject to military law, was read a second and a third time.

The Customs (War Powers)—Amendment—Bill, which is designed to prevent forestalling in case of articles or goods, the export of which is about to be prohibited, was read a second time.

HOUSE OF LORDS—Thursday.

The Earl of DONOUGHMORE, in the absence of the Lord Chancellor, took his seat upon the Woolsack at a quarter past four o'clock.

The House went into Committee on the Munitions of War (Amendment) Bill.

On the motion of Viscount Peel, Lord Newton, on behalf of the Government, accepted an amendment including the repair of fire engines and fire brigade appliances with the definition of munitions work.

The bill passed through Committee.

EXPORTS OF COCOA.

Lord SYDENHAM asked whether the attention of His Majesty's Government had been directed to the great increase in exports of cocoa from the United Kingdom during the war, and whether steps were being taken to regulate those exports. The figures, he said, were very remarkable and somewhat disturbing. From August, 1913, to July, 1914, the total exports of cocoa from the United Kingdom were only 6,138 tons, whereas in the corresponding war period they rose to 32,086 tons. During the first 16 months of the war the total exports were 33,357 tons, whereas there were only 8,883 tons in the corresponding 16 months before the war. The exports from the United Kingdom reached their maximum in November last. Most of the cocoa was exported to Holland and Denmark, and it was impossible to avoid coming to the conclusion that the excess over the normal supplies of these neutral countries found its way into Germany. The only way to control this trade would be to make cocoa contraband, and he could not see why this had not been done.

LORD LANSDOWNE.

The Marquis of LANSDOWNE expressed regret that the Marquis of Crewe, who presided over the Committee which dealt with the question, was not able to be in his place, because he could have answered the noble lord with more knowledge of the facts than he could pretend to possess. The noble lord asked whether the attention of His Majesty's Government had been directed to the great excess of the export of cocoa from the United Kingdom during the war, and whether steps were being taken to prevent those exports. The answer to both these questions would be in the affirmative, but he did not suppose that would entirely satisfy the noble lord. He quite agreed with what had been said as to the importance of cocoa as an article of food and as to the desirability of making it contraband trade with the enemy. The noble lord had quoted figures which showed that neutral countries had been receiving an amount of cocoa entirely out of proportion to their normal supplies, and he agreed that it was impossible to come to the conclusion that part of that cocoa did not find its way to the enemy. The figures which had been quoted could not be accepted as altogether reliable when applied to particular months, because they were compiled from the Customs returns, which did not give the amount of cocoa actually exported in the particular month to which the return applied. Owing to the diversion of trade from Hamburg, there was a great inflation in the amount of cocoa passing through Great Britain. By itself that would be a circumstance for congratulation, as tending to show that we were capturing a business formerly in the hands of Germany. But there was a great deal more in it than a legitimate diversion of trade. Whereas the imports of cocoa into this country during the year 1913 amounted to 78 million lb., the amount in the year 1915 was 187 million lb.—an enormous increase. Of this, 99 million lbs. were entered for home consumption. There was an enormous balance unaccounted for, which it was reasonable to suppose found its way to enemy countries.

INTERCEPTING THE SUPPLY.

As to the steps taken to intercept that supply, it was not until January last that cocoa was added to the list of restricted goods, but the decision then arrived at was held to affect only cocoa powder, and it was so limited in the proclamation. In July an amended proclamation was issued, adding to the restricted list all forms of cocoa, and he thought the restriction had been attended with a fair measure of success. It appeared that during 1915 Norway took about 820 tons from the United Kingdom, and of that about 200 tons only had been shipped since the prohibition was imposed. Cocoa was ordered to be shipped only to manufactories, and in no case in excess of their normal requirements. In the case of Sweden there were over 6,000 tons exported to that country during 1915, and less than 200 tons of that were exported since the prohibition. In regard to Denmark, the total exports for the year were 4,570 tons, and of that only 500 tons had been shipped under licence. In all cases guarantees were required that the cocoa would be consumed in the countries concerned, and not re-exported. The case of the Netherlands was somewhat different. Two very large businesses there—Turner's and Van Houten's—took a large amount of raw cocoa from this country, and returned it to us in a manufactured state. He believed about 90 per cent. of the raw cocoa came back to us in a manufactured state. In addition to the transactions with these firms, 300 to 400 tons a month, or about 30 to 40 per cent. of the normal requirements of the Netherlands, had been shipped under licence, but in every case to manufacturers who were believed to be trustworthy.

ONE OF THE DIFFICULTIES.

In all cases, he understood, they had been able to make satisfactory arrangements with the British exporters. This was necessary, because if they were too stringent in their requirements there would be a very considerable risk that these neutral countries would obtain their goods through other channels, and we should have to face the difficulty of intercepting them. The amount of cocoa which went to neutral countries through British channels was very small compared with the amount which reached them oversea, and it was when they came to deal with the oversea traffic that the real difficulty arose. Taking as an illustration the case of Sweden, in the first eleven months of 1915 the amount of cocoa reaching that country oversea was 11,120 tons, as against a normal quantity of 1,595 tons, and of this large figure no less than 7,218 tons reached Sweden from the United States. In the view of the Government, the best way of securing ourselves against miscarriage of justice was that we should have recourse to the kind of agreement we had entered into with the Netherlands Trust, with the great Denmark traders, and with other traders and corporations of traders. He was very far from suggesting that nothing more could be done. He thought there could be no reasonable doubt that considerable amounts, in spite of all our precautions, continued to reach the enemy. He was able to say that the matter was engaging the most careful consideration of the War Trade Department and of His Majesty's Government, and he believed they were justified in looking in certain directions for the possibility of a gradual tightening up of the precautions which they took. He meant that it was possible for them to obtain fuller and more accurate information than they now received as to the factories in the different countries, and their legitimate requirements, to do more in the way of restricting licences to cocoa consigned to the firms to which he referred, to do something in the way of arriving at agreements with the shippers, under which the shippers would undertake not to consign except to the selected firms; to obtain more effectual guarantees against re-export from the neutral country, and, in cases where the imports could be shown to be excessive, there, of course, to refuse licences, and to resort to the ultimate remedy of the Prize Court. He hoped he had said enough to show that the question was one which the Government regarded as serious, and that they were addressing themselves as best they could to meeting the noble lord's views.

Their lordships adjourned at 6.32 p.m. until Tuesday next.

HOUSE OF COMMONS—Thursday.

The SPEAKER took the chair at 2.45.

NEW WRIT.

A new writ was ordered for the Chesterton Division of Cambridge, rendered vacant by the resignation of Mr. Montagu, on his acceptance of the office of Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster.

ADMINISTRATION OF EGYPT.

Sir EDWARD GREY, replying to Sir J. D. Rees, said that no change was contemplated in the political or administrative direction of affairs in Egypt. Of course, there might be military changes in the course of the war.

BRITISH INTERESTS IN BULGARIA.

Sir EDWARD GREY informed Sir Edwin Cornwall that British interests in Bulgaria were in charge of the United States Chargé d'Affaires. British subjects in Bulgaria were free to leave that country if they desired to do so. No complaints had reached him as to damage to British property.

BANKRUPTCIES.

Mr. PRETYMAN, in reply to a question, said that the number of bankruptcies in the United Kingdom in 1915 were 2,411, those in 1914 were 2,887, and those in 1913 were 3,393.

ALIEN ENEMY FIRMS.

Mr. PRETYMAN informed Mr. Butcher that a bill dealing with alien enemy companies and firms trading in this country would, he hoped, be introduced early next week.

Later on, the PRIME MINISTER, replying to a question, said that the Government was not prepared to give facilities for Lord Halsbury's Bill.

BELLIGERENTS AND NEUTRALS.

Sir EDWIN CORNWALL asked whether belligerents who destroyed the lives of persons belonging to neutral States by inhuman methods of warfare were, under the practice and custom of international law, entitled to purchase indemnity by the payment of money to individuals.

Sir EDWARD GREY said that no action of the British Government had given occasion for such a question to arise between the British and neutral Governments. He was not aware of any international law which had the effect described in the question.

NAVAL FORCES (SERVICE ON SHORE) BILL.

Dr. MACNAMARA moved the second reading of the Naval Forces (Service on Shore) Bill. He said that the object of the bill was to make naval men serving on shore subject to military law. Under the Army Act, at the present time, a large number of men borne on ships' books were serving in the Army in the field, and if any offence was alleged against them they were not subject to military law.

Commander BELLAIRS said he would like to take the opportunity of saying how delighted the Navy was at the honour which had been conferred upon Lord Charles Beresford, and how much he would be missed on an occasion such as this. He was glad, however, to know that he was to be succeeded by a distinguished Admiral, who would be able to assist the House in its debates on military matters in the future. The bill was designed to meet a very old anomaly, and he did not suppose it would encounter any opposition from any quarter of the House.

Mr. KING suggested that the bill should be limited to the duration of the war. If that were done it might pass through all its stages to-day.

Mr. BOOTH contended that the Government had no right to ask the House to pass anything except emergency legislation, and supported Mr. King's suggestion that the bill should be strictly limited to the duration of the war.

Dr. MACNAMARA said he would have no objection to putting words in to limit the operation of the bill to the period of the war, and, say, for six months after, although he thought it a pity that it should be so limited. The amendment would be made in the other House.

The bill was read a second time, passed through Committee, and was read a third time.

CUSTOMS (WAR POWERS) BILL.

Sir GEORGE CAVE, in moving the second reading of the Customs (War Powers) Amendment Bill, said that this was a small bill which would operate only during the war, and it was intended to make certain amendments in the War Powers Acts which had been found necessary and desirable in practice. At present there was some forestalling of exports when it became known that the export of certain commodities was to be prohibited, and Clause 3 of the bill provided that when a resolution had been arrived at to prohibit exports the Customs might, pending the issue of the formal proclamation, prevent the export of such goods. Under Clause 2 of the bill the shipper of goods that were declared not to be of enemy destination was required to prove to the satisfaction of the Commissioners that the goods did not, in fact, reach the enemy.

The bill was read a second time.

The Courts (Emergency Powers) Bill passed through Committee.

The House adjourned at 5.32.

VICTORIA JUBILEE MASONIC ANNUITY FUND.

At a stated meeting of the Board of Governors of the Victoria Jubilee Masonic Annuity Fund, held at Freemasons' Hall, Dublin, on Wednesday, at 8 o'clock p.m., the report of the scrutineers of the ballot for the election of two annuitants was read, when it was unanimously resolved that Nos. 12 and 6 on the ballot list be elected to annuities.

NATIONAL LIFEBOAT INSTITUTION.

PRESENTATIONS AT KINGSTOWN FOR SAVING LIFE.

Last night a meeting of the Kingstown Branch of the Royal National Lifeboat Institution was held in the Town Hall, Kingstown, for the purpose of making a presentation to Mr. Arthur H. Seale, a member of the Committee, and to Mr. J. MacDonald, one of the lifeboat crew, for saving a man from drowning in Kingstown Harbour on the night of the great storm in November last.

Mr. H. R. Tweedy, J.P., presided. There were also present:—Rev. John Pim, Messrs. M. F. O'Brien, J.P.; J. Kirwan Woods, M. M. Kelly, W. Hamilton Clover, H. M. Wright, A. V. M'Cormick, J.P.; J. H. Hargreave, J.P.; Stephens, and B. J. Newcombe, Secretary.

The Chairman, in presenting a barometer to Mr. Seale, and a cheque to M'Donald, complimented them on their prompt and plucky conduct in rescuing one of the lifeboat crew named Shortall, who fell into the water at the lifeboat slip. It was a very dark night, and Mr. Seale, having called for help, immediately went in to rescue the drowning man. With the assistance of M'Donald, Shortall was got out, and they applied artificial respiration for twenty minutes before he showed signs of life. They had him conveyed to hospital, where he remained for a long time, and even at present was in a very indifferent state of health. They were all very proud in the Kingstown Branch to have a member of their Committee and a member of the crew who displayed such promptitude and pluck in an emergency. The presentations having been made, Mr. Seale and M'Donald returned thanks.

Books of the Week.

AN IRISHWOMAN IN CHINA.

Mrs. de Burgh Daly is very much to be envied, not only for the exceedingly varied experiences which she has had, but also for the grace with which she uses her pen in describing them. From the first page to the last of her book there is not one dull paragraph, and, though her narrative covers much ground, we are never conscious that there is any break in the ease with which very strangely assorted incidents are described. We hear about the troubles of an Irishwoman in running a house under conditions far different from any that prevail in our own land. The difficulties with servants and with the language are graphically drawn; plainly we see that Mrs. de Burgh Daly cannot say enough for the Chinese nurse. Social affairs come in for shrewd and kindly criticism. We can feel the pleasure which the authoress felt when she was announced in a Chinese house as "the mother of Ulick." Her husband's profession as a medical doctor doubtless brought her into a more intimate contact with the people than falls to the lot of many Europeans. Behind all the information we glean about native ways we also receive much insight into the minds of the Chinese themselves; in the reflections which the authoress makes we somehow feel that she has got the actual truth of the matter. There is, of course, reference to some native customs—e.g., the practice of infanticide—but Mrs. de Burgh Daly lays far more stress upon the real affection that the Chinese mother so freely lavishes upon her children.

Matters of high policy are not outside the scope of these agreeable pages. We cannot escape from war, and even in this book we come across conflict after conflict. The war between China and Japan and that between Japan and Russia come under the notice of the authoress, and we can see how deep an interest she and her husband took in our contest with the Boer. She makes us understand the position of those who lived far from the scene of operations, and yet felt that their fortunes were bound up with the issue. The photographs on pages 122 and 124 are quite enough to explain why the Japanese beat the Chinese. By the way, the illustrations throughout the book deserve the warmest praise; the reproductions of those of Chinese artists are particularly good. But, to return to the war of 1894, Mrs. de Burgh Daly emphasises the carefulness and the thoroughness with which the Japanese prepared for victory. She admits that the clothing of the soldiers left something to be desired, and that the boots and shoes were at times quite poor. On the other hand, she has nothing but praise for the efficiency of the Japanese medical department. The account of the war of the Legations will attract much notice at this moment. In it Mrs. de Burgh Daly mentions the cases of kindness displayed by the Russians. She remarks that the Chinese used to say that of all the foreign soldiers who then came to China the British, American, and Japanese behaved the best, the Russians were cruel when excited, the Germans were cruel in cold blood. "An eye-witness of their methods, who . . . did his best to prevent reprisals," she writes, "told me that, when the Germans entered a village which they wished to occupy, they drove all the inhabitants out of their houses, regardless of age, sex, or state of health. These poor people would hide among the high millet crops, and perhaps steal back to their homes in the dusk to try and procure some food. The Huns would then deliberately pot them and shoot them in cold blood. Many of these victims were perfectly peaceful people, who had nothing to do with the Boxers."

The survey of the Russo-Japanese War is among the most interesting in the whole book. From the narrative of the authoress one fact emerges, and that is how near the Russians were to winning the war. In fact, a parallel between their chances of success and ours in the American War of Independence is remarkably close. The British and the Russians almost did it. If ever there were cases where the truth of the dictum that it is the last step that costs was emphasised, it is these two memorable conflicts. We think that Mrs. de Burgh Daly's sympathies were more with the Russians than with the Japanese. At this we do not wonder. Besides, she knew so many charming Russian officers, and the good type of Russian officer is one of the most delightful men this world holds. In her opinion the outstanding man upon the Russian side was the luckless General Kuropatkin. He foresaw the war, and he knew the unpreparedness of his country for it. He fought hard for peace, but his counsels were unavailing. Even when hostilities were inevitable he was hampered by the lack of competent intelligence officers, just as Nelson was hampered by the should have recourse to the kind of agreement we had entered into with the Netherlands Trust with the great Denmark traders, and with other traders and corporations of traders. He was very far from suggesting that nothing more could be done. He thought there could be no reasonable doubt that considerable amounts, in spite of all our precautions, continued to reach the enemy. He was able to say that the matter was engaging the most careful consideration of the War Trade Department and of His Majesty's Government, and he believed they were justified in looking in certain directions for the possibility of a gradual tightening up of the precautions which they took. He meant that it was possible for them to obtain fuller and more accurate information than they now received as to the factories in the different countries, and their legitimate requirements, to do more in the way of restricting licences to cocoa consigned to the firms to which he referred, to do something in the way of arriving at agreements with the shippers, under which the shippers would undertake not to consign except to the selected firms; to obtain more effectual guarantees against re-export from the neutral country, and, in cases where the imports could be shown to be excessive, there, of course, to refuse licences, and to resort to the ultimate remedy of the Prize Court. He hoped he had said enough to show that the question was one which the Government regarded as serious, and that they were addressing themselves as best they could to meeting the noble lord's views.

Their lordships adjourned at 6.32 p.m. until Tuesday next.

HOUSE OF COMMONS—Thursday.

The SPEAKER took the chair at 2.45.

NEW WRIT.

A new writ was ordered for the Chesterton Division of Cambridge, rendered vacant by the resignation of Mr. Montagu, on his acceptance of the office of Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster.

ADMINISTRATION OF EGYPT.

Sir EDWARD GREY, replying to Sir J. D. Rees, said that no change was contemplated in the political or administrative direction of affairs in Egypt. Of course, there might be military changes in the course of the war.

BRITISH INTERESTS IN BULGARIA.

Sir EDWARD GREY informed Sir Edwin Cornwall that British interests in Bulgaria were in charge of the United States Chargé d'Affaires. British subjects in Bulgaria were free to leave that country if they desired to do so. No complaints had reached him as to damage to British property.

BANKRUPTCIES.

Mr. PRETYMAN, in reply to a question, said that the number of bankruptcies in the United Kingdom in 1915 were 2,411, those in 1914 were 2,887, and those in 1913 were 3,595.

ALIEN ENEMY FIRMS.

Mr. PRETYMAN informed Mr. Butcher that a bill dealing with alien enemy companies and firms trading in this country would, he hoped, be introduced early next week.

Later on, the PRIME MINISTER, replying to a question, said that the Government was not prepared to give facilities for Lord Halsbury's Bill.

BELLIGERENTS AND NEUTRALS.

Sir EDWIN CORNWALL asked whether belligerents who destroyed the lives of persons belonging to neutral States by inhuman methods of warfare were, under the practice and custom of international law, entitled to purchase indemnity by the payment of money to individuals.

Sir EDWARD GREY said that no action of the British Government had given occasion for such a question to arise between the British and neutral Governments. He was not aware of any international law which had the effect described in the question.

NAVAL FORCES (SERVICE ON SHORE) BILL.

Dr. MACNAMARA moved the second reading of the Naval Forces (Service on Shore) Bill. He said that the object of the bill was to make naval men serving on shore subject to military law. Under the Army Act, at the present time, a large number of men borne on ships' books were serving in the Army in the field, and if any offence was alleged against them they were not subject to military law.

Commander BELLAIRS said he would like to take the opportunity of saying how delighted the Navy was at the honour which had been conferred upon Lord Charles Beresford, and how much he would be missed on an occasion such as this. He was glad, however, to know that he was to be succeeded by a distinguished Admiral, who would be able to assist the House in its debates on military matters in the future. The bill was designed to meet a very old anomaly, and he did not suppose it would encounter any opposition from any quarter of the House.

Mr. KING suggested that the bill should be limited to the duration of the war. If that were done it might pass through all its stages to-day.

Mr. BOOTH contended that the Government had no right to ask the House to pass anything except emergency legislation, and supported Mr. King's suggestion that the bill should be strictly limited to the duration of the war.

Dr. MACNAMARA said he would have no objection to putting words in to limit the operation of the bill to the period of the war, and, say, for six months after, although he thought it a pity that it should be so limited. The amendment would be made in the other House.

The bill was read a second time, passed through Committee, and was read a third time.

CUSTOMS (WAR POWERS) BILL.

Sir GEORGE CAVE, in moving the second reading of the Customs (War Powers) Amendment Bill, said that this was a small bill which would operate only during the war, and it was intended to make certain amendments in the War Powers Acts which had been found necessary and desirable in practice. At present there was some forestalling of exports when it became known that the export of certain commodities was to be prohibited, and Clause 3 of the bill provided that when a resolution had been arrived at to prohibit exports the Customs might, pending the issue of the formal proclamation, prevent the export of such goods. Under Clause 2 of the bill the shipper of goods that were declared not to be of enemy destination was required to prove to the satisfaction of the Commissioners that the goods did not, in fact, reach the enemy.

The bill was read a second time.

The Courts (Emergency Powers) Bill passed through Committee.

The House adjourned at 5.32.

VICTORIA JUBILEE MASONIC ANNUITY FUND.

At a stated meeting of the Board of Governors of the Victoria Jubilee Masonic Annuity Fund, held at Freemasons' Hall, Dublin, on Wednesday, at 8 o'clock p.m., the report of the scrutineers of the ballot for the election of two annuitants was read, when it was unanimously resolved that Nos. 12 and 6 on the ballot list be elected to annuities.

NATIONAL LIFEBOAT INSTITUTION.

PRESENTATIONS AT KINGSTOWN FOR SAVING LIFE.

Last night a meeting of the Kingstown Branch of the Royal National Lifeboat Institution was held in the Town Hall, Kingstown, for the purpose of making a presentation to Mr. Arthur H. Seale, a member of the Committee, and to Mr. J. MacDonald, one of the lifeboat crew, for saving a man from drowning in Kingstown Harbour on the night of the great storm in November last.

Mr. H. R. Tweedy, J.P., presided. There were also present—Rev. John Pim, Messrs. M. F. O'Brien, J.P.; J. Kirwan Woods, M. M. Kelly, W. Hamilton Clover, H. M. Wright, A. V. M'Cormick, J.P.; J. H. Hargreave, J.P.; Stephens, and B. J. Newcombe, Secretary.

The Chairman, in presenting a barometer to Mr. Seale, and a cheque to M'Donald, complimented them on their prompt and plucky conduct in rescuing one of the lifeboat crew named Shortall, who fell into the water at the lifeboat slip. It was a very dark night, and Mr. Seale, having called for help, immediately went in to rescue the drowning man. With the assistance of M'Donald, Shortall was got out, and they applied artificial respiration for twenty minutes before he showed signs of life. They had him conveyed to hospital, where he remained for a long time, and even at present was in a very indifferent state of health. They were all very proud in the Kingstown Branch to have a member of their Committee and a member of the crew who displayed such promptitude and pluck in an emergency. The presentations having been made, Mr. Seale and M'Donald returned thanks.

AN IRISHWOMAN IN CHINA.

Mrs. de Burgh Daly is very much to be envied, not only for the exceedingly varied experiences which she has had, but also for the grace with which she uses her pen in describing them. From the first page to the list of her book there is not one dull paragraph, and, though her narrative covers much ground, we are never conscious that there is any break in the ease with which very strangely assorted incidents are described. We hear about the troubles of an Irishwoman in running a house under conditions far different from any that prevail in our own land. The difficulties with servants and with the language are graphically drawn: plainly we see that Mrs. de Burgh Daly cannot say enough for the Chinese nurse. Social affairs come in for shrewd and kindly criticism. We can feel the pleasure which the authoress felt when she was announced in a Chinese house as "the mother of Ulick." Her husband's profession as a medical doctor doubtless brought her into a more intimate contact with the people than falls to the lot of many Europeans. Behind all the information we glean about native ways we also receive much insight into the minds of the Chinese themselves: in the reflections which the authoress makes we somehow feel that she has got the actual truth of the matter. There is, of course, reference to some native customs—e.g., the practice of infanticide—but Mrs. de Burgh Daly lays far more stress upon the real affection that the Chinese mother so freely lavishes upon her children.

Matters of high policy are not outside the scope of these agreeable pages. We cannot escape from war, and even in this book we come across conflict after conflict. The war between China and Japan and that between Japan and Russia come under the notice of the authoress, and we can see how deep an interest she and her husband took in our contest with the Boer. She makes us understand the position of those who lived far from the scene of operations, and yet felt that their fortunes were bound up with the issue. He fought hard for peace, but his counsels were unavailing. Even when hostilities were inevitable he was hampered by the lack of competent intelligence officers, just as Nelson was hampered by the want of rapid cruisers. Mrs. de Burgh Daly states—and all our information confirms her judgment—that, had Kuropatkin possessed intelligence officers of the right sort, the General could have turned the tide of events both at Liaoyang and Moukden in favour of his own side. Scarcely anything is so dreadful to read as these might-have-beens!

HILLS AND THE SEA.

The weald between the North and South Downs was once the impenetrable forest of Anderida. Over the North Downs came the British tin merchants carrying their ware to the port of Sandwich. Saxons and Danes and Canterbury Pilgrims used the old track. The Romans had thrown a thin ribbon of road, the Stané street, across the forest stretching from Chichester to London. A villa and other Roman remains have been found in the Surrey Hills. "This old track along the North Downs recalls the great name of England more than anything else in the whole of our British Empire. It is the England of Cæsar, of Alfred the Great, of Saint Augustine, of Harold, of William the Conqueror, of Chaucer, of Jack Cade . . . of the great barons." Hurt Wood was a hiding place for smugglers, who rode all night from the coast through Sussex, leaving kegs of brandy on the doorsteps of magistrates and parsons who were friendly with them. A stout man on horseback was sure to have yards and yards of smuggled silk wound round him. An inn at Ewhurst has a false roof for hiding smuggled goods. The heaths are still scored with their packhorse tracks, and their roomy galleries ramble about underground. What a falling off from these picturesque and stirring days to the unceasing procession of motor cars and motor bicycles bound for a "week-end" at Brighton! "It is the motor-owner who will be the greatest revolutionary on these beautiful downs, unless his desecrating hands be stayed by the National Trust acquiring the whole ridge of the downs. . . . For it must be remembered that what kept these downs exclusive was that before the advent of the motor they were inaccessible to city magnates." Of Friday street Mr. Green says: "Your heart rejoices that there is at least one village of exquisite beauty in southern England through which no motor can tear." Hidden among these hills are charming villages, Elizabethan inns—one is even said to date from Richard the Second's days!—and farmhouses, and, greatest wonder of all, a twentieth century farmer who can neither read nor write, though his "uncle died worth £40,000 at the picturesque old farm." There are noble woods, purling streams, singing birds and wild flowers galore. The wild, free commons and heaths have been much encroached on by the Enclosure Acts, and the broom squires and squatters can no longer keep pigs and cut birches, ferns, heath and turf at will. Formerly they sold waggon-loads of brooms in country towns.

Many writers, artists, and statesmen have lived or sojourned among these hills, but we miss Sir Walter Scott's name from the list of those who stayed with "Anastasius" Hope at Deepdene. One of the illustrations shows John Evelyn's birthplace, Wotton House, where his diaries are preserved; but it is a mistake to call the late W. J. Evelyn "the descendant of John Evelyn," whose great-great-grandson died without issue in 1812. Queen Anne's name might have been added to the names of the sovereigns in whose reign John Evelyn lived. Much space is given to George Meredith; there are pictures of his chalet, of the view from his window, and of The Crossways, which was built in 1650. A man who had been Tennyson's gardener for twenty-seven years said: "Sometimes I've seen him stop when out in the garden, kick out his legs like a colt, and swing his arm, and then you knew he had got a fair grip of a bit of poetry that had been buzzing in his brain." Be it known to those who think that writing is easy work that when Mr. Bart Kennedy is "engaged in literary labour" he strips to the waist: "he stripped to write just as he stripped to throw earth when he was a navvy." Likewise, three trees in his garden had "got on to his nerves," and for a time he had in consequence to do his writing in town. Mr. W. B. Yeats told Mr. Green that he has the power of casting spells upon the Irish peasant, making him see ghosts. The peasant's account of the matter would be interesting. And who, we wonder, is the Irish poet whose hobby is poaching, who returns to London in the small hours with a bag of game, and sometimes with small shot in the calf of his leg, lodged there by pursuing keepers?

Some misprints have slipped in—"Nicholas and Mike tramped from London to Portsmouth" makes one ask whether the printer was an Irishman unacquainted with Smike—but 1608, spoken of as Tudor days, is hardly the printer's fault. Some sentences would be pounced on by Punch, and when did the verb "to vision" get into the English language?

We have no bewitching villages in Ireland; our woods, alas, are gone or going, but as we look at the many illustrations in this book we cannot but think that our Irish hills are more beautiful, with the added charm that no city magnate has discovered them, and that we have not reached the pitch of blood-thirstiness that threatens to shoot a trespasser. It would be pleasant to tramp over the Surrey hills with this book as a guide.

WAR-TIME LETTERS.

There is always an interest in discovering how our forebears behaved in certain circumstances, and this little book will be welcomed by many as showing how in times of stress, more or less similar to those in which we live, our countrymen of bygone ages thought and felt. Letters are a tangible portion of a man's character, and possess the property of clothing his memory with reality for successive generations. It is quite easy to visualize the old sea-dog, Robert Wenyton, when in 1449, with but a few small ships, he fell in with "a flote of 100 great ships of Pruse, Lubeck, Campe (?), Rostock, Holland, Zealand, and Flanders betwixt Guernsey and Portland. . . And then I came aboard the Admiral and bade him strike in the King's name of England, and they bade me skyte in the King's name of England." After this insult a "scrap" was inevitable, but he succeeded in rounding up "all the chief ships of Dutchland (Germany), Holland, Zealand, and Flanders." His own ship, however, had suffered to the extent of some £2,000 of damage, which made him resentful towards the crews of the captured fleet. "Therefore I am advised, and all my fellowship, to drown and slay them all without that we have tidings from our Sovereign King and Council."

In a letter from one Leonel Sharp to the Duke of Buckingham we find reported the address made by Queen Elizabeth to her troops encamped at Tilbury in 1588. Rather than suffer dishonour from any invader she is ready to take up arms herself and die among her men in the heat and blood of battle. "I know I have the body of but a weak and feeble woman, but I have the heart and stomach of a King, and a King of England, too." Fine, inspiring words, and worthy of "Bluff Hal's" daughter. Of quite a different nature are the letters of Henrietta Maria to Charles, letters of a devoted wife to a husband whose faults she recognises and is not afraid to criticise. "Delays have always ruined you," she writes in one. Apropos of the question of the Militia, which was perplexing the King, she remarks: "You are beginning again your old game of yielding everything." But, despite these home truths, she can end one letter: "If I knew Latin I ought to finish with a word of it; but as I do not, will finish with a French one, which can be translated into all sorts of languages, that I am yours after death, if it be possible."

There are characteristic letters from Cromwell, and several notable ones from Marlborough to his duchess describing the victories of Blenheim and Ramillies. Of the latter he does not give much detail, referring her to bearer, as "having been all Sunday, as well as last night on horseback. My head aches to that degree."

It is quite impossible to quote from all these fascinating letters. It must suffice to point out an interesting one from Lady Mary Wortley Montague to Mr. Pope, written from Belgrade among the Turks in Serbia; several from Lord Chesterfield; some of Horace Walpole's of particular interest. Again Nelson's letters have an interest of their own, and his old friend and colleague, Collingwood's, are quite charming.

One letter of Wellington contains a remarkable parallel to present war conditions. Napoleon, he points out, had seized Rome, Holland, and the Hanse towns, and annexed them to France, for the purpose of making them pay for his war, the resources of France having been drained. "War must be a financial resource," he writes. The book closes with some letters from Sir Charles Napier, whose last one contains an outline of a scheme for raising a volunteer army, which will be read with interest. Every letter in the book is worth its place, and we commend it warmly to all our readers.

AN IRISH CARTOONIST.

Since British caricaturists succeeded in rousing the wrath of the great Napoleon, we should not wonder if the Kaiser's hatred of England is intensified by the presentment of his personality with which we are growing familiar. The most serious contribution to this class of delineation which we have so far encountered is to be found in these cartoons by Mr. Edmund J. Sullivan. No more scathing denunciation of the results of human ambition has ever come from the pencil of the draughtsman. From the frontispiece of "The Crucifixion of Belgium"—representing a youthful winged figure nailed to a cross bearing the legend, "By Order, Wilhelm," while the bystanding Kaiser lights a cigar, and the Crown Prince placidly smokes a cigarette—to the last dreadful "Return of the Conqueror," in which a skeleton figure with lance and shield rides a garlanded and plumed skeleton steed through a wilderness of rough crosses marking the places of sepulture of the dead, no relief is afforded from the dreadful tragic note, so that the beholder, laying down the book, feels constrained to exclaim with Macbeth: "I have supped full with horrors." Very dreadful is the cartoon entitled "Die Wacht am Rhein," with the Kaiser tied to a cross rising from the water, with a board fastened across his jack-boots, bearing the words, "Es ist Verboten," while a huge vulture, perched on the arm of the cross, tears at his liver. No less so is the review by the mounted Kaiser of the army of skeletons, marching, with the German parade step, to the tap of a broken drum—"Ave Kaiser, Imperator morituri, mortui te salutamus."

Some, indeed, of the drawings, such as "The Prussian Butcher," "The Devil's Own Game," or "The Belgian Bed," show that decadent degradation of humanity which characterised some of the work of Aubrey Beardsley; and others, such as "The Blessed Sacrament of 'Kultur,'" and "The Black Mass," offend by their irreverence. The draughtsmanship is throughout powerful and original, and for such cartoons as "The Rag-picker"—a skeleton chiffonier who picks up the torn-up treaties which the Kaiser throws behind him—or "The Hope of the Hohenzollern"—the Crown Prince with a sack of loot labelled "Louvain"—we have nothing but praise.

The artist tells us that "on one occasion" he "threw a bunch of roses" into the carriage of the Kaiser "as he passed, driving in State to the Guildhall"—hence the title of the "present bunch of drawings." "If," he adds, "this garland that I have prepared should on his last ride between the crowds drop into the Imperial tumbril and graze his cheek, I shall not be sorry."

CANADIAN WAR VERSE.

Save, perhaps, for the sonnets of the late Rupert Brooke, and some poems of Mr. John Masefield's, the great European War can scarcely be said to have called out much poetry of the first class. It has, nevertheless, inspired much minor verse of excellent quality, and to this our overseas Dominions have contributed no insignificant addition. The two little books before us are good examples of this. The first possesses a pathetic interest in that its poems are from the pen of a young Canadian soldier of "Princess Pat's" Contingent, who met his death at St. Eloi during his first day in the trenches. He had come to England with the first Canadian Contingent, but, when his regiment proceeded to France, the soldier-poet, much to his disgust, had been left behind, temporarily unfit through an attack of influenza. His two immediate wishes were to get to the front, and to have his poems published. "Both wishes," says his editor, "have now been gratified; but Sergeant Brown lived only to enjoy the first, and that only for a few brief hours, for he was shot during his first day in the trenches on February 3rd."

The poems are of unequal merit: perhaps, the best are "The Call," "Fallen," and "The Rubaiyat of a Man-at-Arms"—so named by its editor—though there is both humour and merit in "The Grouch." The last verse of "Fallen" has a prophetic ring:—

Christmas (at arms)—oh! bitter thought,
Peace and goodwill—e'en this is nought
But irony.
This agony! . . . Hush! . . . the angels . . . weep . . .
Peace. . . . Peace at last. . . . ah! . . . dreamless sleep.
Eternity.

This is the conclusion of "The Rubaiyat":—

We know that when the battle flag is furled,
And God's own peace is settled on the world,
Forgot will be the slaughter, gone the dream,
The hurricane of war in which we whirled.

Aye, seated once again in peaceful chair,
Forgotten be the torches' ruddy flare,
Remembered only are the just rewards—
A cross for valour; for the dead, a prayer.

Ah! drink that day when Earth alone by laws
Is ruled—the consummation of our cause;
When war is banished, and his Gorgon face
The ready sword will, frightened, make to pause.

The second volume—"Canada and Other Poems"—is more ambitious, but we cannot say that its performance altogether equals its promise. The writer is, as he tells us, an exile from the homeland, but an ardent Colonial. His first two poems, "Canada" and "England," give token of this divided allegiance. The former commences:—

O Canada! Thou art loveliest
Of Northern lands of sun and snow,
Where fall and river swiftest flow
To mountain lake from mountain crest.

The latter contains the lines—

England, my England!
High have I set thee
In my proud heart, where thy
Loveliness gleams.
England, my England!
Who could forget thee?
Oft in the fields I lie—
Isle of my dreams.

The little poem entitled "Spring" is too reminiscent of Tennyson's "Maud," especially in its opening stanza—

She is coming—again I hear
The fall of her fair, white feet;
And I know that night has gone—I have naught to fear;
And that Life is sweet.

The most pleasing effort is probably that entitled "Dawn," beginning—

Joy, the dancer, Youth, the laughter-lover,
Came and stood.

The writer should be capable of better things than the contents of this volume.

THE NEW GEOGRAPHY.

There was a time when geography shared with history the distinction of being the subject of extremely bad text-books. Indeed, in one respect it was in a position worse even than that of history, for there have been great historians, but who has ever heard of a great writer upon geography? The last few years have seen a vast change in the manner of book to which the student of geography has been treated. He now has text-books which it is a pleasure to read. In fact, the whole subject has been transformed not merely in teaching, but also in the class of work now written for the student and the school-boy. "The World We Live In" is a good specimen of this change. It discusses such subjects as the relation of geography to history, the making of the earth, the evolution of the oceans and the continents, the distribution of mineral wealth, the distribution of plants, the distribution of animal life and of man, ocean currents and tides, climate and weather, trade and transportation, and maps and map-reading. The capable editor, Mr. G. Williams, has secured as contributors men who know their work. They include Professor Lyde, Professor Cole, Mr. Hinks, Sir Harry H. Johnston, and Mr. Koebel. The illustrations are very good, indeed.

A reader of this excellent volume will at once see that geography is no longer a mere mass of dead facts; we are no longer to associate it with dreary lists of rivers in Europe, the capes on the east coast of China, or the principal towns of Yorkshire, with their population. Thus treated, the subject had no challenge for the reason, and very little for the imagination. The new geography is a very different thing. It is impatient, it is apt to be too impatient, of mere memory work and of useful knowledge. It has become a science, embracing an immense sphere, and making the highest claims. Or rather, as this volume proves, it has become a method of correlating the results of the various sciences from a particular point of view. The aim of Mr. Williams's book is to explain and to evaluate the forces which have moulded and control the earth's crust and its atmosphere, and to show how these forces have affected the conditions of plant and animal life, and consequently human life. All this ambitious programme is shadowed forth in the book before us, and we are certain that, when the four volumes are in the hands of the reader, Mr. Williams and his staff of experts will have carried it to a successful issue.

"The World We Live In." Edited by G. Williams. London: The Waverley Book Co. Vol. I. 8/6.

THE ITALIAN RENAISSANCE.

Those who study the Italian Renaissance can hardly avoid reading this interesting and scholarly book, written by one who is really mistress of her subject. It has now reached a third edition, at which no one can wonder. Isabella Gonzaga, Marchioness of Mantua, was one of the great figures of her time. Less wonderful than her brilliant younger sister, Beatrice, she had, perhaps, more solid qualities, and, whereas the younger sister died at twenty-one, the elder lived to nearly seventy years, and saw and patronised nearly three generations of the greatest painters whom the world has ever seen. When she came to Mantua Andrea Mantegna was established there as the Court painter to her husband, but after his death hardly lesser artists were found to fill his post, though none of them ever became so completely associated with the house of Gonzaga as "Messer Andrea."

From Isabella's beautiful collection of pictures, with which she decorated her Sala, come all the best pictures at Hampton Court, as, after her death and that of her son, who loved painting as she did, her collection was bought nearly intact by Charles I. After that Monarch's death many of her beautiful things were sold by order of Cromwell, but the finest pictures in the present collection—the Mantegna "Triumphs," the early and exquisite Correggio, the Giorgioni portraits, the rare Dosso Dossi pictures, also a Sebastian del Piombo, which make the Hampton Court Gallery worthy of a visit—were hers.

Mrs. Abdy has written a very interesting monograph on this collection, which is often referred to in the book before us. Two portraits of Isabella are given—one by Leonardo, one by Titian—but apparently her beauty was that of expression and colour rather than of feature, for in the reproductions of these portraits it is difficult to trace the charms of which all her contemporaries wrote. It is also difficult to picture to one's self what manner of woman this "great lady" was. Above all things she was an "amateur de la beauté." To possess beautiful things in which her soul greatly delighted we almost feel that she was willing to sacrifice things of, perhaps, more real value. She was certainly a typical woman of her age.

"Isabella D'Este." By Julia Cartwright (Mrs. Abdy). Third Edition. London: John Murray. 12/-.

GOBINEAU.

It is not a little odd to get a translation of a book published in 1853. No doubt, part of Count Gobineau's famous book is still of value. It was, however, published, not to say written, many years before Darwin sent forth his epoch-making thesis. To our mind this detracts very much from the value of a work that once made a mark. To us it would seem very much as if some one should translate Buckle's "History of Civilisation" into French without taking into account the researches of the last generation. It seems to us that it was at least the duty of the editor to indicate in footnotes where the biological argument required change. At the same time, if the reader makes due allowance for the date of publication, it is even yet a very stimulating performance.

"The Inequality of Human Races." By Arthur Count Gobineau. Translated by A. Collins, M.A. London: W. Heinemann. 5/-.

RECENT FICTION.

In this volume are combined in reality three novels, which have, we think, already appeared; but a combined edition will be welcome to all who have read any of the former books. It is a thoughtful study of the mind of a child first, then a boy, and, finally, of the completed man. Yet, careful as Mr. Temple Thurston is to paint all, he does not find it necessary to burden us with trivial and useless detail such as we have to wade through if we wish to find the scattered gems in "John Christopher." For this wise reticence we ought to be grateful, as it is weary work reading many useless pages in small type for but a trifling return. The book before us is one to keep and enjoy, perhaps, even more at second reading. It may be, perhaps, compared with "The Mill on the Floss," for we feel that much of it is autobiographical; it is also largely lived round a mill, but it is the boy, and not the girl, whom we study. Mr. Temple Thurston has tried to paint genius, and here he fails, but in great company; for we are not yet aware of any successful attempt to paint it in any English novel, though such attempts are plentiful.

"The Achievement of Richard Furlong." By E. Temple Thurston. Chapman and Hall. 6/-.

This is an excellent story of San Francisco in its infancy, in 1851, at a time when judges were so corrupt—or, perhaps, we should say when justice was decided by some obscure, often totally irrelevant, technical point—that murders were committed daily in the open street and the murderer was certain to go unpunished. To such a point had matters culminated that, in despair, a vast number of law-abiding, respectable citizens banded themselves together by oath, under the title of the Vigilantes, or Vigilance Committee, and, seizing the jails, proceeded to try the most notorious of the inmates. Those found guilty of murder were promptly hanged; others were punished by heavy fines or by banishment. This summary method of administering the law had a very remarkable and sudden effect in clearing the city of criminals. Whether the whole history is founded on fact, or is altogether imaginary, is a question that does not trouble the reader. Mr. White's narrative is most thrilling and convincing.

"Grey Dawn." By Stewart Edward White. Hodder and Stoughton. 6/-.

One may always count on a well written and carefully constructed story when the title page of the book bears the names of Alice and Claud Askew. Nevertheless, with the publication some years ago of "The Shulamite" these writers reached their high water mark. In the present volume, taking as a sort of text the saying of a great modern industrial magnate, that "in one sense we are all weavers," they write around it the story of a millowner in the North of England, or, rather, two millowners, rivals in trade, who in their earlier years had been rivals in love. At the time of the opening of the story, Jabez Gilman and Peter Rawson were about to become partners, for, weavers by every instinct and habit, they thought they could end their rivalry by marrying respectively their son and daughter to each other. It is made clear as the story develops that there are many threads to manipulate when it comes to controlling other people's lives, and into the fabric may be woven disaster and tragedy.

"The Weavers." By Alice and Claud Askew. Ward, Lock. 6/-.

This is the life-story of an Irish girl, Hope O'Brian, whose mother dies on the night of the child's birth, and whose father—"the last of the O'Brians of Galway"—is arrested on that same night on the charge of being an outlaw, and is executed shortly afterwards. Hope is reared in an Irish convent, and remains there until she comes of age. She then travels to India, as companion to an Anglo-Indian merchant's wife. At this point the story commences in real earnest. It treats of Anglo-Indian life, as it is led in the outlying stations; the curse of the "brandy habit" when indulged in by women; the evil consequences that result from thoughtlessness on the part of a self-centred husband who is incapable of appreciating the whole-hearted devotion of a brilliant wife, and many other problems which are to be met with in everyday domestic life. The reader will not alone follow with interest the life-story of the fascinating heroine of this book, but will, we venture to think, feel all the better for having done so.

"A Million for a Soul." By Mrs. C. E. Phillimore. Long. 6/-.

Miss Cotterell possesses considerable skill in the making of a novel. Her characters are cleverly drawn, and there are few tedious intervals throughout the story. But the main defect in the present case is the lack of any trace of a spiritual side to any of her characters. The only one who seems to believe in Divine guidance is represented as a weak, spiteful little creature, whose whole life is a lie. Well as this story is written, this defect is a serious hindrance to our appreciation of it. It might have passed without comment a couple of years ago, but in these times, when mere worldliness is stripped of its tinsel, one looks for something finer than this from a competent authoress.

THOM'S DIRECTORY FOR 1916.

Thom's Official Directory of Great Britain and Ireland for 1916 is published to-day. Now in its seventy-third year of publication, this work is invaluable to many members of the community. There are, indeed, few persons who have not need of Thom's Directory at some time. A glance over the table of contents shows the comprehensive nature of the work. We have first the calendar for the year, containing daily memoranda of circumstances occurring at different periods of the year necessary to be known by the barrister, solicitor, student, man of business, agriculturist, and sportsman. It also shows the time of high water at the ports of Dublin, Belfast, Galway, Londonderry, Queenstown, and Waterford. Passing on, the inquirer finds, among other things, the fairs and markets in each county of Ireland, commercial tables, index to the Imperial Statutes and Irish local Acts passed in 1915, statistics of foreign States and of the United Kingdom, the names of the principal Cabinet Ministers since 1834, of the Peers, Bishops, Baronets, Knights, Judges, Privy Councillors, and members of the House of Commons; the British Orders of Knighthood, the Irish Peerage, Government Departments of Ireland, literary and scientific institutions, with the following directories:—Parliamentary, Navy, Colonial, medical, ecclesiastical, law, banking; postal; railway, canal, and steamboat companies, and the Post Office Dublin City and County Directory.

Thom's Directory has, of course, been fully revised and supplemented to bring it up-to-date. It is always found to be accurate and informing in every respect. A feature to which special attention is now directed is the new valuations of houses and premises in the City of Dublin which were prepared by the Commissioner of Valuation at the recent general re-valuation, and will come into force on the 1st of March, 1916. These valuations are of great interest to all owners of house property.

The Irish Times.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 14, 1916.

The German Imperial Chancellor, in opening the Prussian Diet yesterday, said that the enemy's projects of wearing them down and cutting them off from the overseas world had failed. In hard fighting Germany, supported by her Allies, had held her ground before a world of enemies, and had carried her colours far into enemy territory. With their King-Emperor they faced the future full of confidence in God and in victory.

We publish to-day a full list of the Orders, Promotions, Distinguished Service Order, and Military Cross conferred on officers and warrant officers principally mentioned by Sir John French in the lists published in our columns at the beginning of the New Year.

The Miners' National Delegate Conference, specially convened to consider the Military Service Bill, met in London yesterday. The meeting was unanimous in voting against the Bill.

Mr. Justice Kenny directed a Dublin special jury yesterday to find a verdict for the payment of £1,510, the amount claimed by Mr. P. W. Tunney, a stockbroker, from Mr. J. Boyers, draper, in reference to the purchase of Russian Mining Shares, the settlement for which, in the ordinary course, would have taken place on 29th July, 1914, but owing to the moratorium the date of the settlement was fixed for 18th November. Plaintiff paid the differences down to the mean prices on 27th July and also the contango. Defendant contended that the rules of the Stock Exchange were ultra vires, and that the plaintiff had contravened the mandate given to him in regard to the transactions.

The Dublin Port and Docks Board yesterday re-elected Mr. William Crowe Chairman, and elected Alderman Moran Vice-Chairman. The Chairman urged the continuance of an economical policy, stating that in the last quarter of 1915 the Board lost £5,000 in dues on cross-Channel traffic. Mr. William J. Dollar was coopted a member of the Board.

At a public meeting in connection with the Navan and District Branch of the N.S.P.C.C. yesterday it was stated that the Director of the Society, at the request of the War Office, had investigated statements as to excessive drinking among the wives of soldiers, and had found these rumours to be gross slanders on the great majority of these women. Through the action of the Society's inspectors eight hundred Savings Bank accounts had been opened by soldiers' wives. In one town where drinking was reported it was found that two out of eighty-four soldiers' wives were drinking, and they had given a bad name to the others.

Two women, named Hargreaves and Callaghan, old age pensioners, were suffocated yesterday by a fire which broke out in the house where they lived, in Little May street, Belfast.

In London yesterday the Stock Markets preserved a steady tone. Business was light, and quotations developed some hesitation on the advances. Money, both for the day and the week, was in better supply at 4½-¾ per cent. The Discount market was dull, and rates were not particularly steady. In Dublin the Stock Market was cheerful. Guinness Shares were good and Marconis wanted.

The Balkans.

It is not extravagant, we think, to detect some relation between the two latest items of news from the Balkans. One item is that the Allies have occupied the Ionian island of Corfu, whither they propose to transfer the Serbian Army from the Albanian coast. The other item is that, "as a precautionary measure," they have blown up the great railway bridge over the River Struma at Demir Hissar, some forty miles north-east of Salonika on the Constantinople railway, by which line the left wing of an enemy attack on Salonika would advance. A relation between these two events is not at once apparent. It can be discovered, however, if we consider how the Allies' activity on the eastern shore of the Adriatic, including the transfer of the Serbian Army to Corfu, promises to constitute a new menace to the enemy's whole position in the Balkans. The Allies point out in their Note to Greece—in which they adroitly disarm her expected protest by saying that they "thought Greece would not oppose the transfer to Corfu of her Allies the Serbians"—that only this island offers the necessary facilities from the point of view of the health of the Serbian troops, the speed and security of transport, and the means of revictualling the soldiers. These facilities, however, are far from exhausting the value of Corfu as the new Serbian base. We may assume that the Allies have other advantages in view besides the healthiness of the island and its convenient situation between Italy and Albania. If Corfu is a suitable place to which the Serbian Army may withdraw, it is also pre-eminently a suitable place from which that Army, after rest and refitting have restored it to a formidable fighting force, may resume offensive operations in the Balkans. Corfu occupies a position of very great strategic value, and its occupation by Allied forces to-day repairs the blundering generosity of 1864, when the whole of the Ionian Islands were airily surrendered to Greece by Great Britain.

From the naval point of view Corfu, commanding the exit from the Adriatic, and offering, with its sequestered bays and channels, ample opportunities as a base of flotillas, will be a useful asset to the Allies. Its possession will deprive the enemy of what is almost certainly a base for their submarines operating in the Eastern Mediterranean, and it will off-set, to some extent, the Austrian gain, by their capture of Mount Lovchen, of freedom to develop the great naval potentialities of Cattaro. It is from the military point of view, however, that, in the present Balkan situation, the establishment of the Serbian Army at Corfu is of the greatest value. Half a dozen miles away from Corfu, across the strait, is the Southern Albanian port—one of the rare good ports on the coast—of Santi Quaranta. From Santi Quaranta there runs up into Serbian Macedonia, emerging at Monastir, one of the very few passable roads which traverse Albania. The flanks of this road are secure. On the one hand is the Greek territory of Epirus. On the other is that part of Southern Albania, the hinterland of Avlona and Durazzo, which is in the occupation of the Italian expeditionary force. Not the least of the disadvantages of the loss of Mount Lovchen, which might have been averted by a timely extension of Italian action northwards from Durazzo, is that it compromises to some extent the northern wing of the Allies' position on the Adriatic front of the Balkans. There is in process of establishment on this Adriatic front, however, another Allied base, inferior, no doubt, but not incomparable, to their base at Salonika. The function of their holding of Salonika is reproduced, less perfectly, by their holding of Corfu and the surrounding districts of Southern Albania. The difficulties of active operations through that country are mitigated to a great extent by the fitness of the Serbian Army and of the Italian Army for mountain campaigning. The Allies have now acquired not one, but two, secure bases of re-entry from which in the spring they can menace the enemy's position in the Balkans. The enemy's freedom of manœuvre in the Balkans, or the extension of their activity further east—against Egypt, for example—is gravely compromised while the Allies retain these bases of re-entry.

With the addition of the menace from Southern Albania to the menace from Salonika, the enemy see the strategic initiative in the Balkans gradually passing out of their hands. If they suffer the Allies to develop their strength for an offensive campaign from these two bases in the spring, they lose most of the advantage of their present supremacy in the Balkans, and they have no security that in the end they will be able to resist the Allies' advance. The evidence of a coherent scheme of action methodically matured by the Allies which these events on the Adriatic front supply may well have determined the enemy to attempt at all hazards, at once, and once for all, to rid themselves of the dead-weight of the Allies' drag upon their freedom of action. Of the two Allied bases of re-entry, the menace from Salonika is the more formidable to the enemy. Their choice between two evils—attacking Salonika, or leaving it alone—is being inclined more and more to the former alternative as the smaller evil. They have clearly no liking for the enterprise of assaulting the positions at Salonika which the Allies have had plenty of time to render impregnable; but they are coming to have still less liking for what may happen if they do not attempt to oust the Allies from Salonika. Whether they can gather the necessary forces to give such an attempt even an indifferent chance of success is another question. The enemy, in the Balkans as elsewhere, are getting desperately short of men. The poverty of their resources is revealed by the fact that, in order to withstand the Russian offensive into the Bukowina and Eastern Galicia, they were compelled to withdraw several divisions from the Balkans. For the present, however, the Russian offensive, after securing substantial results, is suspended. Probably the enemy have a shrewd idea within what period of time it is likely to be resumed. They may consider that the period is long enough to justify them in returning at least a part of their forces to the Balkan front, and in undertaking an attack upon Salonika. Certainly the enemy's situation requires them, if they can gather the necessary forces to give them some chance of success, to make the attempt. The destruction of the bridges on the Salonika-Constantinople railway suggests an anticipation by the Allies that an attack is impending. It will be a considerable disappointment to them if it is again deferred; for in no theatre are we entitled to regard the Allies' prospects with greater confidence than in their defences before Salonika.

War Pictures.

We have all seen pictures of the training camps where the men of Earl Kitchener's Armies are handled and made. Now there is to be a further unfolding of the veil. Next week the War Office will release for exhibition a series of films which depict the life and movements of our troops in the actual area of war. The films were taken with the approval and assistance of General Headquarters on the western front. We are told that the subjects include pictures of life in billets and of troops marching to, and returning from, the trenches. These pictures will have an enormous attraction for the British public, since they will bring home to it more vividly than any amount of description the conditions under which its sons and brothers are now fighting for King and country. They will carry the sights and scenes of war to our very doors. It is suggested that the films should be exhibited also in those Allied countries which are not yet fully cognisant of Britain's services to the common cause. An Englishman, writing from Italy, declares that they would be a "precious antidote" there to the poison of pro-German propagandists. A similar antidote is badly needed in Russia, where the German slanderer of England has been peculiarly active, and only twenty-five per cent. of the people can be reached by the written word. In Russia the cinematograph is now the chief means of popular education, and nearly every village has its picture-house. But the value of the new British Army pictures may be still greater in places much nearer home: we predict striking results from them if they are freely exhibited in Ireland. The Compulsion Bill has made voluntary recruiting a consideration of secondary importance in Great Britain. Ireland alone is still subject to the voluntary system, and that system, it is to be feared, is reaching the end of its resources in this country. There are two points of general agreement about the recruiting situation in Ireland. One is that many thousands of able-bodied young men are still turning a deaf ear to their country's call. The other is that it is neither cowardice nor disloyalty which is restraining the majority of these young men, but merely apathy, laziness, and, in many cases, ignorance of the facts and urgency of the war. We can imagine no better corrective of these things than a series of vivid pictures of the exciting life of the war field—the quick movements, the comradeship, the rush to action, the massing of gay and vigorous humanity. We believe that the appeal would be almost irresistible if the War Office would prepare and send to Ireland pictures of the life and conditions of some of the famous Irish regiments which are now on the western front. Think of the effect on the young men of an Irish village if they could see, in the stirring and unfamiliar surroundings of a French encampment, the figures of their old school fellows, now going manfully about the King's business. An appeal to sentiment, to imagination, and to local feeling is always powerful in Ireland, and these pictures would provide it. We make a present of the suggestion to the Irish Recruiting Department. If it can persuade the War Office to carry out the scheme without delay, we are confident that the necessary trouble and expense will be well repaid.

Mexico.

The murder of a score of peaceful American passengers on a Mexican railway would be a grave enough incident at any time. Now that the year of the Presidential election is come—though the election itself is not due until November—everything tends to receive a political tinge. The Mexican policy of President Wilson and the Democrats is one of the party's most vulnerable points. A very large number of the electors of the United States have a much more real interest in the Mexican policy of the Administration than they have in its European policy. Quotations from the New York Press give the impression that the majority of Americans are indignant at President Wilson's excess of patience in dealing with the Central Powers. In point of fact, a far larger number are more genuinely irritated by the Administration's Mexican policy, which the President has defined as one of "watchful waiting." General Carranza is now "top dog" in Mexico, and his Provisional Government is more or less recognised by the United States and the "A. B. C." Powers of South America. It was hoped that Villa, on seeing this measure of recognition accorded to Carranza, would retire from the field, and that his followers would resign themselves to a peaceful acceptance of the situation. In course of time this will probably happen, but, for the present, Carranza's authority is still disputed. His inability to keep order over the whole country is shown by the murders in the Chihuahua district. They give point to the contention of President Wilson's critics that he should have taken vigorous action, by the use of United States troops and marines, to set the country in order. Hence the active display of interest in the matter shown by Mr. Roosevelt, who is well aware of the part that may be played by the Mexican discussion in the election campaigns. "Watchful waiting" is not half so impressive as the "big stick."

Youth.

Mr. Asquith showed his usual discretion yesterday in declining to be drawn into a definition of youth. The term "military age" has an accepted meaning in connection with the present recruiting scheme. Otherwise, it is only a little less indefinite than the word "youth." Serving in the field are boys of fifteen and men approaching the seventies. Admiral Bacon, in his despatch describing the recent naval operations off the Belgian coast, mourns the death of the oldest naval officer afloat—an officer who, at the age of sixty-six, "with undemonstrative patriotism," rejoined on the outbreak of war, and died in service. Military age can be fixed arbitrarily by military authorities, but who will venture to fix the bounds of youth? Mr. Asquith evaded the task. It is difficult, if not impossible (he said), to define the precise boundary line at which men cease to be young. There does not exist even a rough general understanding on the point. The judgment implied in the catch phrase, "too old at forty," has not won acceptance. Few men are at all old at forty. Some are entitled to be called young at eighty. It does not help one, to speak of middle age. Middle age and old age are periods, whereas youth is a quality. That is why men do not like to think of themselves as no longer young. The phrase implies the loss of something that is part of life itself. Very few men ever do feel, in fact, that they are no longer young. At twenty one thinks of fifty as old age; but at fifty one feels just the same as at twenty. You may pinch yourself to try to make yourself wake up to the fact of being old; but you will not succeed. It is just the same with marriage and with parenthood. Before these things come you expect that they will make you feel different; but they do not.

THE BARALONG INCIDENT.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)
AMSTERDAM, THURSDAY.

Discussing Sir Edward Grey's reply to the German allegations that the captain of the Baralong murdered the prisoners from a German submarine, the Koelnische Volkszeitung, in connection with the statement that the British Navy has rescued 1,150 German sailors, says that the statement appears to confirm the suspicion that the captain of the Baralong did not act on his own initiative when murdering the crew of the German submarine, but on general orders from higher quarters, according to which no prisoners were to be made from German submarines, but the crews were to be shot or drowned on the spot. As early as April, 1915, the British Government declared that in the course of the war over a thousand German naval officers and men had been rescued or captured by the British. As, according to the British statements, many German submarines have since then been captured by the British, without the number of German naval prisoners in England increasing, it is obvious with alarming clearness that the British Government, in fact, had the audacity to issue a general order, which was carefully kept a secret, according to which the crews of captured German submarines were not to be rescued or taken prisoners, but shot or drowned.

GREAT BREACH IN THE GRAND CANAL.

SERIOUS DAMAGE NEAR EDENDERRY.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)
EDENDERRY, THURSDAY.

An enormous breach has taken place on the Grand Canal near Edenderry. Near midnight on Tuesday the people living near the Tunnel were terrified to hear a loud report; a few moments afterwards the houses in the vicinity were flooded, and women and children had to be removed to a place of safety. Cattle and horses were rescued by means of boats with great difficulty. An effort was made to block the canal line at two points, but in one case the swift flowing waters swept the block gates away. At the other point three men, named O'Rourke, Dempsey, and Bermingham, who endeavoured to lower the gates, were precipitated into the water owing to the breaking of the plank on which they stood, and narrowly escaped drowning. The whole country lying between the canal and the River Boyne is flooded. Over one hundred yards of the canal bank is torn up as if by an earthquake, and quantities of the line, some of them weighing several tons, have been carried long distances. Large trees were uprooted by the torrent and swept away. All traffic has had to be suspended. It is estimated that the damage amounts to £40,000.

The Grand Canal Company gives notice that in consequence of the breach in the embankment traffic cannot be forwarded from Dublin to Athlone, Belmont, Ballinasloe, Banagher, Carrick-on-Shannon, Dromineer, Edenderry, Kilbeggan, Kylemore, Kilgarvan, Killaloe, Lanesboro', Luska, Limerick, Mountshannon, O'Brien's Bridge, Philipstown, Portumna, Rahan, Rooskey, Rhode, Rossmore, Shannon Harbour, Shannon Bridge, Scariff, and Tullamore.

COMPULSORY SERVICE BILL.

MINERS AGAINST THE MEASURE.

The Miners' Conference in London yesterday decided to accept the reports from the districts which show an overwhelming majority against the Government Bill, and to call a further conference to consider further action in the event of the bill being passed.

The Conference unanimously resolved to oppose the bill, and send a report on the figures to the Premier. In the event of the Prime Minister consulting the Executive Committee of the Miners' Federation before the passing of the bill a National Conference may be called immediately following any such interview.

It was officially announced that the figures of the voting on the bill in the various districts were as follows:—

For	58,100
Against	653,190
Neutral	25,240

The anti-conscription resolution of the Miners' Federation Conference, together with an analysis of the district voting results, were forwarded to the Prime Minister last night in accordance with the decision of the conference. The statement shows that the following coalfields voted for opposition to the Government measure:—Scotland, South Wales, Yorkshire, Northumberland, Durham, Lancashire and Cheshire, Derbyshire, Somerset, and Cumberland; one district, Nottingham, cast its votes in favour of the Government measure, while three districts—Cleveland, North Wales, and South Derbyshire—having no mandate, abstained from voting.

The Federation, in their letter to the Prime Minister, have not asked for a conference, but have left it to Mr. Asquith to invite them if he considers it necessary.

The conference unanimously passed a resolution desiring the Executive Committee to interview the Premier with a view to urge upon him the imperative necessity of increasing by at least half a crown per week payments under the Old Age Pensions Act.

It is probable that a further meeting of the Triple Industrial Alliance will be held at an early date to consider the situation, and to decide on the course of action in regard to the Military Service (No. 2) Bill.

SINN FEIN.

Away there in the trenches, they are fighting side by side:
Irish, English, Scotch, and Welsh, in comradeship long tried;
As brave the one lot as the next, as trusty and as true,
As stout of heart to watch and wait, as keen to dare and do.

But here at home's too many yet, content to sit and shirk
In Ireland, England, Scotland, Wales, while others do their work;
To let their youth be their disgrace, to jostle with the old,
To give their manhood and their strength only for gain of gold.

Now, here's a thing is bad to hear. In Parliament they've said:
"If Sandy, John, or David will not come, he shall be led.
But Pat is free to sit at ease, if so his tastes incline,
And watch the Irish ranks-of-war stretch taut, a thinning line."

Rise up, young lusty Irishmen, and save your country shame,
If not for justice, not for right, then for the land's good name,
Till clear from South, from West, from North, your ringing answer swells:
"They didn't dar' come fetch us, so we've tuk and fetched wersel's!"

Belfast, January 13th, 1916.

LONDON CORRESPONDENCE.

153 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
THURSDAY NIGHT.

It seems beyond doubt that the Kaiser is dangerously ill. The Star to-night published a message from its Rome correspondent saying that the return of Prince von Bülow to Germany was to attend a council to be presided over by the Crown Prince to decide upon the measures to be adopted in case the Kaiser's illness is prolonged or the surgical operation unsuccessful. It is also rumoured that the Queen of the Hellenes and the Princess of Prussia have been summoned to Berlin.

The House of Commons was very quiet this afternoon, with a very poor attendance of members. Ninety-five questions were disposed of in the fifty minutes allowed. The Nationalists showed great indignation at the fact that the letters of the Bishop of Kerry were subjected to inspection by the Post Office censors. Mr. Tennant assured them that the letters of bishops in other parts of the country were subjected to the same treatment, but this did not mollify them, particularly Mr. Flavin, who, in truculent tones, pointed out that the letters were confidential and religious. The House was not at all sympathetic. It gives nobody a shock in these times to receive a letter that has been censored, and even bishops cannot expect to be exempt.

The Nationalists again were heated and indignant at the fact that some of the grants for Ireland have been reduced owing to the war. Mr. Boland and other members fired small arms at members of the Government, but Mr. John O'Connor was the big gun. Sitting in Mr. Redmond's place, he rose, and, making a sweep with his hat, demanded if Mr. Acland knew what the President of the Board of Trade said the other night. Twice his adjuration was repeated, but nothing happened. At present the majority of the members of the House of Commons has little sympathy with the Nationalists, and, after their spar with members of the Government was over, many members in other quarters of the House chuckled with amusement.

Mr. Field was informed that no grants for distress in Dublin would be made by the Government this year, or to any other place in the United Kingdom. Mr. Runciman told Mr. Butcher that the new Bill dealing with enemy companies and firms trading in this country is to be introduced early next week. The same Minister, in answering a question put by Mr. Harold Smith with regard to precautions taken to protect the Persia, failed to give satisfaction, and Mr. Smith said that he would raise the question at the adjournment on Monday. Mr. Smith, it is understood, can tell some pitiful stories of the people on board. He made the acquaintance of some thirty children while on the ship. Nearly all were drowned.

The sitting proved very short, indeed, and by 5.32 members were free to go home or elsewhere for the week-end. In this time three measures were dealt with—viz., the Naval Forces (Service on Shore) Bill, which passed through all its stages; the Customs (War Powers) (Amendment) Bill, which was read a second time, and the Courts (Emergency Powers) Bill, which passed through Committee. In addition to these, and before they were taken, Mr. Tennant formally introduced a Bill to amend the Army (Suspension of Sentences) Act, 1915.

This Session of Parliament will come to a close on the 26th or 27th inst. There is little more work before the Commons now. The Munitions Bill passed the House of Lords this afternoon. The only other Bills of importance are the Military Service Bill and the Parliament Bill. The latter has already passed the House of Commons. On the Committee stage of the Military Service Bill only two big issues will be raised. The one concerns the fear of industrial compulsion, which the Prime Minister stated yesterday that he would deal with by way of amendment, and the other the proposal of the Ulster members that Ireland shall be included in the Bill. It is understood that the Government will not accept this amendment.

Although Mr. Arthur Henderson and his two Labour colleagues remain members of the Government, their retention of office is only provisional, and depends upon the vote of the Trade Union Conference, which will be held at Bristol this month. If the Conference should persist in opposing the Military Service Bill, these Ministers would have to reconsider their position. It is confidently hoped, however, that last week's decision—which was somewhat in the nature of a snatch vote—will be revoked, and that they will be enabled to continue their membership of the Coalition.

Up to twenty years ago it was not considered etiquette for an ex-Cabinet Minister to resume practice at the Bar. In 1895, however, Mr. Asquith, who had been Home Secretary in Mr. Gladstone's Administration, returned to his briefs, and Sir John Simon has now followed his example, and is already busy.

In this connection I may mention a curious little incident. When a counsel becomes Attorney-General it is customary to paint out his name on the door of his chambers and to substitute his official designation. A day or two after his inclusion in the Government Sir E. Carson arrived at his chambers to find the painter at work making the change. He promptly vetoed the alteration, and told the man to leave his name as it was.

It is understood that in any further divisions on the Military Service Bill Sir John Simon, if he must vote against the Bill, will have to vote alone so far as members of the Liberal Party are concerned. They have voted against the measure for the last time, and it is probable that they will offer no further opposition to its progress in any way. This does not include the cranks and faddists, who may be expected to continue in their folly.

If, as is rumoured, Mr. H. J. Tennant should succeed Mr. Samuel as Postmaster-General it will be a case of well-deserved promotion. Mr. Tennant has been Under-Secretary for War since 1912, and since the war began has been the most hardly worked member of the Government. In its early stages, I fancy, he met with departmental difficulties which were reflected in his answers in the House. But he has gradually obtained a thorough grasp of his work, and has latterly developed a sense of humour and a terseness of expression which are very much to the taste of members generally, as he endures the daily fusillade of questions. His place at the War Office will be hard to fill.

If Mr. Tennant goes to the Post Office I hope that he will not persist in the ruthless cutting down of its services which has been going on for some time. Nothing tends more to national cheerfulness and well-being than freedom of postal communication. Ireland is especially interested in the continuance of parcel post facilities, on which depends a very large trade in farm produce. Thousands of English housewives get their butter, eggs, and fowl every week from Ireland, and find the quality better and the price lower (even allowing for the postage) than in the case of similar articles at the local provision shops.

Not much attention need be paid to the protest of the Greek Government against the occupation of Corfu. It is only formal, and intended to protect the neutrality of Greece. King Constantine knows very well the position of the Ionian Islands in relation to his throne, for they were ceded to Greece in consideration of the acceptance by the Greek Government of his father as King. There is, however, a pleasing touch of poetical justice in the fact that the German Emperor is now obliged willy-nilly to provide a home in his villa, the Achilleion, for some of the Serbians whom he has forcibly expatriated.

FROM "THE TIMES" OF TO-DAY.

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH THE PROPRIETORS OF THE TIMES.)

A NEW SORT OF PEACE TALK.

The German Press, says The Times, seems to be gradually drifting into a new kind of peace talk. For some time past certain journals—the tendency is the most marked in the Austrian Press—have been arguing, not so much that the enemies of Germany are too stupid to see that they have been beaten, but that they are making the continuation of the war inevitable by persisting in impossible aims. Now, even the Cologne Gazette publishes a two-column leading article, called "War as a permanent state of things," and indicating that the German public has reluctantly reconciled itself to this idea. The Cologne Gazette reiterates the German official assurances that Germany is always ready "to enter into seriously-meant peace negotiations"—seriousness being taken to mean that the negotiations "proceed from the facts of the military situation, which speaks in Germany's favour."

FINANCE AND THRIFT.

The Times reverts to-day to a discussion of our financial needs, and says:—It is idle and mischievous, when we contemplate the formidable financial problems before us, to seek comfort in the reflection that our enemies are in a worse position than we are, and still more to entertain the thought that "peace may come very much sooner than some of us expect." The Germans and the Austrians are enduring a much severer strain than we suffer, but does anybody fancy it is nearly severe enough to force them to sue for peace on the only terms on which peace will be granted them? Is there the slightest prospect that they can be reduced to extremities within any calculable period? So far as we can judge, there is none. Peace will come when we beat Germany in the field, and it is on this assumption only that our financial policy, like all our war policy, must be framed. We cannot, without reckless improvidence, base it upon the hopes of a speedy economic collapse amongst our enemies. We were fed with hopes of that kind a year ago. We regret to notice that they seem to underlie Mr. Runciman's speech the other day. To cherish them is to impair the vigour of our defence; to utter them cannot fail to encourage the enemy. We must so think and so act as to be ready to hold out for five, ten, or twenty years, if necessary. Our financial system must be drawn to meet all eventualities, and to admit of revision from time to time, as occasion may demand.

PREMIER'S VISIT TO THE KING.

PROLONGED AUDIENCE.

The Prime Minister went to Buckingham Palace last evening and was received by the King, with whom he had a prolonged audience.

The Court Circular states that Sir Ralph Paget, Assistant Under Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, had the honour of being received by the King yesterday on his return from Serbia, where he has been acting as Commissioner for the supervision of British hospital units.

Lord Wimborne and Mr. Balfour, in addition to the Prime Minister, had audiences of the King yesterday, and Sir William Robertson, Chief of the Imperial General Staff, was received by His Majesty.

EVACUATION OF GALLIPOLI.

AMUSING TURKISH ACCOUNT.

(PRESS ASSOCIATION WAR SPECIAL.)
AMSTERDAM, THURSDAY.

To-day's communiqué from Constantinople contains the following highly-imaginative description of the British and French evacuation of the southern portion of the Gallipoli Peninsula:—

On the 10th inst. several enemy cruisers and torpedo boats for a short time bombarded Seddul Bahr and its surroundings, Tekke Burnu, and the Anatolian batteries without doing any damage. A cruiser, coming from the direction of Kavalla, attempted to bombard the sector north of the Gulf of Saros, but was driven off by our batteries. Our aeroplane, piloted by Lieutenants Boedicke and Chonos, on the 2nd inst., shot down a fourth enemy aeroplane, which fell into the sea off Seddul Bahr.

The battle on January 8 and the following night, which terminated in the defeat of the enemy near Seddul Bahr, developed as follows:—The decreased activity of the enemy land batteries, which were replaced by fire from the war vessels, and the presence of numerous transport vessels near the landing place, made us conclude that the flight of the enemy, who was greatly disturbed by our strong artillery fire, was imminent. All measures were taken in order to inflict on the enemy greater losses this time. These measures were also successfully carried out. The preparations for the attack began as far back as the 4th inst. The sector selected for attack was vigorously bombarded by our artillery and bombing detachments.

On January 8th we increased our fire and exploded mines, and finally sent out strong reconnoitring parties along the entire front. In view of this prelude to our attack the enemy assembled near his left wing numerous war vessels which vigorously bombarded our advanced positions. Our detachments at some points advanced close to the enemy trenches, where they were received by infantry fire and hand grenades.

During the night of the 8th-9th we again sent out our reconnoitring detachments against the enemy trenches. At three in the morning the enemy retreat began in the centre. We therefore advanced our whole front. A portion of the retreating enemy troops fled to the landing places under protection of heavy fire from enemy war vessels. Other enemy detachments exploded a number of automatic mines, thus attempting to delay our advance step by step. At this moment our long range guns opened fire on the landing pier, while our land batteries severely bombarded the enemy rearguards, inflicting heavy losses on them. Our mountain guns, advancing with the infantry, disturbed the enemy with close range fire. Our troops bravely withstood the fire of the enemy vessels and the automatic mines without regarding the terrible risks they ran. They felled the enemy soldiers who were unable to escape the effective fire of our artillery, and offered desperate resistance.

At daybreak our troops found themselves among numerous dead bodies of the enemy. We ascertained only recently that our artillery was obtaining very good hits, and that the enemy, who was being severely pressed along the entire front by all means at our disposal, and by the attacks of our strong detachments, was no longer able to continue a further resistance in this section even under the protection of his numerous naval guns.

Thus the last act of the fighting which has been going on on the peninsula for eight months ended in the defeat and retreat of the enemy.

The counting of the great booty, which consists of guns, weapons, ammunition, horses, mules, carts, etc., has not yet been concluded.

WESTERN FIELD OF WAR.

SIX BRITISH AIRMEN KILLED.

FOUR MACHINES SHOT DOWN.

GERMANS POISONED BY THEIR OWN GAS.

Sir Douglas Haig reports that four of our aeroplanes sent out on Wednesday did not return. The German despatch records the shooting down of the machines, and adds that six of the English air officers are dead and two wounded.

The French report the repulse of German attacks in Champagne, in which clouds of gas sent out by the Germans were blown back on their own trenches.

BRITISH REPORT.

PRESS BUREAU, 11.25 P.M.

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, Jan. 13, 9.35 P.M.

Last night the enemy exploded a mine near Givenchy, following up the explosion by a bombing attack, which was driven back.

To-day there has been some hostile shelling about Givenchy, but, on the whole, the day has been quieter than usual along the whole front.

Four of our aeroplanes sent out yesterday have not returned.

FRENCH REPORTS.

(PRESS ASSOCIATION WAR SPECIALS.)

PARIS, Thursday.

This afternoon's official communiqué says:—

Between the Somme and the Aisne, in the course of the night, the enemy attempted a coup de main, which completely failed, against one of our small posts.

In Champagne two hand-grenade attacks—one to the north-east of the Butt de Mesnil, and the other towards Maison de Champagne—were stopped dead by our curtain of fire.

Further information concerning the German gas attack attempted yesterday in the sector of Forges shows that in the course of the operations a gust of wind turned the gaseous clouds back upon the enemy's trenches.

The bombardment of the enemy's lines was very violent.

11 P.M.

In Artois we carried out a violent bombardment of the positions on the Lille road, destroying at several points the enemy's trenches and shelters.

Between the Somme and the Oise a German column, estimated at one regiment, was caught by our fire at the moment when it was entering Roye.

To the north of the Aisne our artillery damaged an observation post and some machine gun shelters, and reduced to silence an enemy battery of 105-millimetre guns on the Plateau Vauclerc.

GERMAN DESPATCH.

(PRESS ASSOCIATION WAR SPECIAL.)

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 13.

To-day's German communiqué says:—

North-east of Armentières an attack by a strong English force was repulsed.

In Champagne the French early to-day repeated their attack north-east of Le Mesnil. The attack was easily repulsed. An attack on a portion of a trench near the farm of Maisons de Champagne, which we captured on the 9th inst., also failed.

Lieutenants Boelcke and Immelmann shot down two English aeroplanes, one north-east of Eurcoing and the other near Bapoune. In acknowledgment of their extraordinary performances, these intrepid officers have been decorated by the Kaiser with the Order of Pour le Merite.

A third English aeroplane was shot down in an aerial fight near Roubaix, and a fourth by our anti-aircraft fire near Ligny, south-west of Lille. Six of the English officers are dead and two are wounded.

PRUSSIA UNSHAKEN.

GERMAN CHANCELLOR'S DECLARATION.

EMPEROR'S GREETING TO THE DIET.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

AMSTERDAM, Thursday.

A Berlin telegram says that the Prussian Diet was opened to-day by Dr. von Bethmann Hollweg, Imperial Chancellor.

The speech from the Throne says—The King-Emperor has charged me to open and welcome the Diet in his name. While you are here assembled for work, the sanguinary fighting on distant battlefields continues. As our enemies forced war on us, so they bear the guilt and responsibility that the people of Europe should still be tearing themselves to pieces. Providence is placing an iron test before our people. Great things are required. Great things, too, have been done. The enemy's projects of wearing us down by cutting us off from the overseas world have failed. With its own resources our agriculture is ensuring the feeding of the population. With its own resources our industry and handicraft provides what we require for defence. The working hands of millions who remain at home maintain our economic life, in spite of the war and the war's calamities, and, above all, stand the achievements of our people in arms, inexpressible in magnitude and heroism. In hard fighting, Germany, supported by loyal Allies, has held her ground before a world of enemies, and has carried her colours far into enemy territory. The old Prussian military spirit of which we are proud has proved, in noble emulation with our brother Germans, its inextinguishable and vital force, adding new immortal glory to the heroism of our fathers' forefathers. With our King-Emperor we face the future full of confidence in God and in victory. One single holy thought fills us—to give everything, down to the very bottom of the nation's resources, for the life and security of the nation.

THE EMPEROR'S GREETING.

As a greeting to the Diet the King-Emperor has only words of warm thanks to the warriors abroad, and provides an increase abroad and at home. Your coming labours, gentlemen, will be devoted especially to the requirements of war. The general economic pressure of war has not indeed been able to shake the sound strength of Prussian finances. But still their maintenance require an increase in receipts. Therefore, a proposal will reach you which provides an increase of the additions to the income tax and the supplementary tax. For the reconstruction of East Prussia further State funds will be expended.

RAILWAY ADMINISTRATION.

Special care is being devoted to railway administration, which proved so brilliant in the war, and must not now be neglected. Therefore, considerable funds will be demanded for the extension of the railway system and the manufacture of cars. Gentlemen, the Emperor-King knows that your labours in the new Parliamentary session will, as heretofore, be sustained by a spirit of sacrifice and resolution, by the brave spirit which alone gives our people strength to pass through this mighty war victoriously. In the tremendous experience of this war a new generation is growing up. The entire manhood which is capable of bearing arms, united by brotherly loyalty, united by death, protects the State and the people. The spirit of reciprocal understanding and confidence will also continue to have effect in peace, in the common work of the entire people for the State. This spirit will penetrate our public institutions and will find active expression in administration, in legislation, and in the shaping of principles for the representation of the people in legislative bodies. To heal wounds received, and to call forth new life out of the mighty achievements and sacrifices of our people, will be our biggest task as soon as a victorious peace is secured. In storm has the Prussian State grown great; in storm it stands to-day unshakeable. What our enemies represent as compulsion is liberty based on order. The bond which binds the Prussian to the King has, if possible, been forged more firmly by these times of battle and victory. God protect Prussia in the future as in the past, and preserve her as a strong pillar of the Empire. On this we build and carry on the good fight to a good end. At the command of His Majesty the King-Emperor I declare the Diet opened.

FRENCH BLOW UP RAILWAY BRIDGES.

DESPERATE POSITION IN MONTENEGRO.

The French have blown up the railway bridges over the River Struma at Demir Hissar and Kilindir, on the Salonika-Constantinople railway.

The position in Montenegro is regarded with concern in London, where it is held that a small Allied force with guns would enable the Montenegrins to hold their positions, and prevent the country from being over-run by the Austrians.

FRENCH REPORT.

(PRESS ASSOCIATION WAR SPECIALS.)

PARIS, Thursday Night.

There is nothing to report on the Greek frontier. The necessities of our plan of defence compelled us to blow up the railway bridges at Demir Hissar and Kilindir.

SALONIKA, Thursday.

As a preacautionary measure the French have blown up the big railway bridge over the River Struma at Dimir Hissar, on the Salonika-Constantinople railway.

ALLIED LANDING IN CORFU.

(TIMES WAR TELEGRAM, PER PRESS ASSOCIATION.)

ATHENS, Wednesday.

The Allied landing in Corfu by the French has caused a lively sensation.

The Greek Government has lodged a formal protest on the ground that Corfu has been recognised as neutral territory by international treaty.

MONTENEGRINS AND SERBIANS.

(PRESS ASSOCIATION TELEGRAM.)

We learn that official telegrams received from Scutari, at present the headquarters of the Serbian Government, state that although there is still a great dearth of food, the position in this regard shows some improvement.

In well-informed quarters the view is expressed that the important matter for the moment is the fighting in Montenegro, where portion of the Serbian Army is believed to be fighting side by side with the Montenegrins.

It is held that the despatch of a relatively small Allied force with guns would enable the Montenegrins to maintain their position and prevent the country being over-run by the enemy.

As regards the Serbian Army, which is at present in various centres, it is felt that with a short period for rest and reorganisation it will again form an important fighting force.

DEMAND TO SUCCOUR MONTENEGRO.

(TIMES WAR TELEGRAM PER PRESS ASSOCIATION.)

MILAN, Thursday.

The fall of Lovtchen is very deeply felt in Italy, and the news may be said to have come as a complete surprise. The Press is unanimous in demanding that something should be done. Even the Giolittian Stampa devotes a long article to the necessity of succouring Montenegro. The Secolo seems to sum up the general opinion when it asks how long the Allies intend to play into the hands of the enemy, giving him choice of time and place, and it insists upon the urgent necessity of defining a general plan of campaign to be executed at any cost.

INCREASE IN THE FRENCH MERCANTILE FLEET.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

PARIS, Wednesday.

The Government will to-morrow introduce a bill providing for an increase in the French mercantile fleet. The measure is designed to encourage individual initiative, and to give facilities to ship owners to induce them to purchase ships in Allied and neutral countries. The bill authorises the making of loans repayable by yearly instalments, and fixes the rate of indemnity to be paid in the event of the ships being requisitioned. In return the ship-owners will have to undertake to maintain such vessels in the French mercantile service for a minimum period of five years, and to employ them in the import of French goods until the present difficulties attending marine transport have been mitigated. The bill has been inspired by the principle already adopted by the French Parliament of giving preference to purchases made in Great Britain.

THE SUCCESS OF THE FRENCH LOAN.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

PARIS, Thursday.

The Petit Journal says that when M. Ribot announced the success of the French loan he stated that the sums offered to France exceeded 560 million pounds. At that moment the returns were not complete. To-day it can be stated that the loan exceeds 600 million pounds.

BELGIANS SENTENCED BY GERMANS.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

AMSTERDAM, Thursday.

The Echo Belge learns from Liège that two sisters named Rahier and their uncle were recently sentenced to various penalties by the German authorities. The elder sister was sentenced to death and the uncle and the younger sister to fifteen years' penal servitude for assisting young Belgians to join the army. An aunt of the sisters, who was also arrested, has been acquitted.

ARRIVAL OF A TORPEDOED STEAMER'S CREW.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

MARSEILLES, Thursday.

The s.s. Mossoul, of the Messageries Maritimes, has arrived here from Salonika and Malta, having on board Captain Webster and twenty men of the crew of the British steamer Glengyle, which was torpedoed without warning, when ten men of the crew, three Englishmen and seven Chinese, lost their lives. The steamer rescued the survivors and conveyed them to Malta.

ECONOMIC CONDITIONS WORSE.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

AMSTERDAM, Wednesday.

The Handelsblad learns from the frontier station of Enschede that numbers of Dutch working-class families are daily returning from Germany owing to the economic conditions in that country, which are every day becoming worse. The majority of them are destitute, and declare that they suffered great hardships during their stay there. The journal adds that there are still thousands of Dutchmen in Westphalia, but these will also soon be compelled by hunger to return home.

FLIGHT SUB-LIEUTENANT CECIL HORACE BRINSMEAD.

An official notification has been received by relatives that Flight Sub-Lieutenant Cecil Horace Brinsmead has been killed on active service. He left for the Mediterranean at the end of October, and, writing from Imbros on November 19th, said:—"I have been appointed to a squadron, for which I am very pleased, as it is the wing that does all the work, which consists of spotting and reconnaissance and bomb-dropping on the Peninsula (Gallipoli) and in Bulgaria. The deceased officer, who was twenty-two, was a son of the late Mr. Horace Brinsmead, one of the finest amateur boxers of his day, and sometime managing director of the well-known piano firm.

He received six years' accelerated promotion for distinguished services performed whilst serving with the Naval Brigade in the relief of the Legations at Peking during the Boxer rising of 1900, for which he also held the China medal. He had been home on leave, and had rejoined his ship only three weeks ago.

MURDERS BY MEXICAN BANDITS.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

WASHINGTON, Thursday.

Sir Cecil Spring Rice, British Ambassador, has asked Mr. Lansing for any information as to there having been British subjects among the men shot by Mexican bandits near Chihuahua. The reports in question speak of two of the 18 men murdered on Monday as having been born under the British flag. The State Department is attempting to obtain confirmation of Press messages from Chihuahua that two Englishwomen and 10 American men have been killed near Madera.

5 PER CENT. EXCHEQUER BONDS, 1920.

Arrangements have been made by His Majesty's Treasury by means of which 5 per Cent. Exchequer Bonds, 1920, may be issued and registered at the head office of the Bank of Ireland. Subscribers should make inquiries through the Dublin office of their bankers, or other agents, for particulars of the mode of procedure.

Exchequer Bonds issued from the Bank of England having been sent to the applicants at their risk, it was felt that the Treasury should bear the risk of transport, and accordingly a gentleman interested in this matter having written to Mr. Montagu received the following reply:—

Treasury Chambers, Whitehall, S.W.,
January 12, 1916.

Dear Sir,—I am desired by Mr. Montagu to inform you, in reply to your letter of the 10th inst., that the Treasury are in communication with the Bank of Ireland with a view to making arrangements under which the Bank of Ireland will be able to receive applications for the issue of 5 per Cent. Exchequer Bonds, and the Treasury will bear the risk of the transport of the Bonds to the Bank of Ireland.—Yours faithfully,

Andrew M'Fadyean.

SPECIAL EXTRA.

KAISER'S ILLNESS.

REPORTED TURN FOR THE WORSE.

SISTER SUMMONED.

Very persistent reports are current, says the Daily Telegraph, concerning the illness of the German Emperor, which is stated to have taken a serious turn for the worse. His condition is alleged to be now so grave that his sister, the Queen of Greece, has been summoned to Berlin. Inquiries made in usually well-informed quarters yesterday elicited the reply that no confirmation of the report concerning the serious nature of the illness was available, but that there was no reason to believe it to be untrue.

REPORTS OF ILLNESS WELL FOUNDED.

SOME INDICATIONS.

The Paris correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, telegraphing on Thursday night, is able to state from a sure source that the reports of the German Emperor's serious illness are well founded, and that his condition may be considerably worse than anyone imagines, although the exact nature of the malady is not known. Many indications—the cumulative effect of which amounts to strong evidence—tend to show that for some weeks, or even months past, the Emperor has ceased to exercise immediate control and direction of military and diplomatic operations. Shrewd judges perceive clear signs that the unity of leadership which had been unmistakable in the Austro-Germans since the beginning of the war, and was one of their chief forces, no longer exists to anything like the same extent as it did until latterly.

GERMAN ANXIETY.

The Amsterdam special correspondent of the London Daily Express, telegraphing on Thursday, says—The deep anxiety prevailing in Berlin over the Kaiser's health came to a climax to-day, when the semi-official agencies at the eleventh hour announced that, contrary to his intention, the Emperor would not read the Speech from the Throne at the opening ceremony of the Prussian Parliament. The circumstance made the public extremely anxious. As the ceremony took place inside the Palace, so that the Kaiser did not need to leave the building, this disposes of the statement that he is really only remaining indoors as a precaution, and confirms the rumours that his illness is very serious. It is impossible, however, to obtain further information. It is noteworthy that the Wolff Bureau, which is generally effusive with denials, has not denied that the Kaiser is in a serious condition.

THE SUVLA FAILURE.

The Lobby representative of the London Daily Express, writing on Thursday night, says:—Mr. John Redmond to-night handed in notice of two questions, to be addressed to the Prime Minister on Monday, with reference to the Suvla Bay failure.

In the first of these he asks whether Lieutenant-General Sir F. Stopford has asked for an inquiry into the circumstances of the landing at Suvla Bay, dealt with in Sir Ian Hamilton's despatch; and whether such an inquiry will be held forthwith.

Mr. Redmond's other question raises the same issue in a more direct and emphatic form. In view of the references in Sir Ian Hamilton's despatch to the action of the Corps and Divisional Commanders at Suvla, Mr. Redmond asks whether the Prime Minister will grant an inquiry before a competent and impartial tribunal to investigate all the circumstances of the unsuccessful operation, with the appalling loss of life entailed, owing to the absence of artillery, and the failure of the water supply.

ALLIED ARMIES AT SALONIKA.

THE REPORTED ATTACK.

The Rome correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, telegraphing on Wednesday night, says:—The Giornale d'Italia publishes the first telegram from Athens reporting the commencement of the enemy's advance against the Allied lines at Salonika. The enemy yesterday started a violent bombardment in the Doiran zone, and the cannonade still continues. The Allies replied vigorously, and from their lines calmly await infantry attacks. The enemy's forces are estimated at from 300,000 to 350,000 men, of whom 100,000 are Turks, who have arrived from Gallipoli. Up to this evening no information with regard to the above events arrived direct from Salonika, the only news received being the statement that during the last few days large Allied forces have landed at Salonika and the Gulf of Orfanos.

AUSTRIA AND MOUNT LOVCHEN.

(PRESS ASSOCIATION WAR SPECIAL.)

ZURICH, Thursday.

The Vienna Press is rejoicing at the capture of Mount Lovchen and at the anger this has aroused in Italy.

The Nieue Freie Presse says:—It is one of the most brilliant feats of the present war. We now feel for the first time that the Bay of Cattaro and the southern coast of Dalmatia really belong to us. Cattaro will become one of the finest and strongest harbours in the Adriatic, where we are beginning a new chapter in the history of our fleet.

Die Zeit says:—The possession of Lovchen is of the greatest importance for the further conduct of the war on this front, because it not only secures us a naval base at Cattaro, but on the land side a commanding approach to the Lake of Scutari, and an assured base for extending the fighting in Albania.

A telegram from Sofia quotes the Bulgarian Minister of Finance as saying that the offensive of the Central Powers and Bulgaria against Salonika would not begin as quickly as it otherwise might because of the immense preparations necessary. The Minister is convinced that Greece will remain neutral, while he thinks Rumania to-day has no object in joining either group of Powers.

HEALTHY POLITICAL SPIRIT.

NATIONALIST ATTITUDE.

The Political Correspondent of the Standard writes:—The formation of independent committees of members of Parliament—the Unionists and Liberals respectively—for the purpose of promoting the acceleration of the war is a very interesting development of Parliamentary energy. The Liberals approached the Unionists yesterday and suggested a basis of co-operation in the advancement of their common object. The present concern of both committees is to facilitate all war legislation, and the voting of supplies and their tendency will be to expedite matters by discouraging all superfluous speech-making. This healthy spirit extends to the Nationalists to a much greater extent than is generally believed. Nothing was more marked, I am told, at the Irish meeting held after the first reading division, than the unanimity with which the party welcomed the change of front which Mr. Redmond felt himself bound to propose. The feeling of the bulk of the party is that all past obligations to Radicals, Labour members, and others should be subordinated to the supreme necessity of winning the war.

UNOFFICIAL CASUALTY.

The following casualty, not yet officially announced, is notified in the Morning Post:—Major Wilfrid Worsley Blackden, late Royal Munster Fusiliers, attached 11th Battalion Northumberland Fusiliers, died in hospital in France on January 10th. He retired from the Royal Munster Fusiliers in 1902, but on the outbreak of war he rejoined the Service, and in October, 1914, he was gazetted Major, Second in Command of the 11th Service Battalion of the Northumberland Fusiliers.

EASTERN FIELD OF WAR.

FURTHER RUSSIAN SUCCESS.

SUBMARINE DESTROYED IN BLACK SEA.

The Russians report that in Galicia two attempts by the enemy to take the offensive were repulsed. North-east of Czernowitz the enemy was forced to evacuate part of his trenches, which the Russians occupied.

In the Black Sea Russian torpedo boats destroyed an enemy submarine and two sailing vessels.

RUSSIAN REPORT.

(PRESS ASSOCIATION WAR SPECIAL.)

PETROGRAD, Thursday.

The official communiqué issued to-day says:—

In Galicia, on the Middle Strypa front, the enemy, under the protection of a snowstorm, made two attempts to take the offensive in the Dabropolie region, but was each time repulsed by our fire.

In this region, and that north-east of Czernowitz, the enemy was forced to evacuate part of his trenches, which we occupied.

In the Black Sea on Tuesday our torpedo boats destroyed an enemy submarine, which had been damaged off the Anatolian coast. Our torpedo boats also destroyed two sailing vessels laden with coal.

AUSTRIANS SHOOT GERMANS.

(PRESS ASSOCIATION WAR SPECIAL.)

PETROGRAD, Thursday.

According to a telegram from Kieff, the prisoners captured by the Russians relate several instances in the recent fighting in the Bukovina in which the Austrians fired on the retreating Germans, thus avenging numerous cases in which the Germans have fired on the Austrians.

GALICIA AND BUKOVINA.

IRRESISTIBLE RUSSIAN ATTACKS.

(TIMES WAR TELEGRAM, PER PRESS ASSOCIATION.)

PETROGRAD, Thursday.

Prisoners taken on the south-western front unanimously bear testimony to the irresistible character of the Russian attacks in Galicia and the Bukovina, and speak of the Russian bayonet charges with unfeigned horror. The prisoners include numerous German non-commissioned officers who were specially assigned to command the machine gun platoons and to direct the entrenchment work, but the Russian artillery fire was so overwhelming that the strongest fortifications erected in Bukovina by Mackensen's experts were speedily demolished. On the Strypa the cannonade was so awful that the fire-swept area looked as though it had been subjected to the ravages of an earthquake. Deep pits, alternating with mounds of blown up earth, mingled with wire entanglements and other débris, over which it was impossible for artillery to pass, failed to check the onrush of the Russian infantry. The elaborate character of the Austro-German trenches on the Strypa indicates that the enemy confidently expected to occupy them for the entire winter. The soldiers' shelters were rooms with windows, stoves, walls and floors, and were furnished with tables, benches, and beds. The officers' shelters were proportionately luxurious, the appointments including wash-stands, beds with spring mattresses, desks, bookcases, and upholstered chairs.

IRISH QUESTIONS.

CENSORING BISHOPS' LETTERS.

In the House of Commons yesterday,

Mr. TENNANT, replying to Mr. Flavin, said the letters to the Bishop of Kerry and other Bishops in Ireland were treated by the Censor in exactly the same way as those of similar dignitaries in other parts of the United Kingdom.

Mr. FLAVIN—Is the opening of private and confidential letters of a most confidential, sacred character the way to bring about conciliation in the South of Ireland?

DISTRESS COMMITTEES.

Mr. BIRRELL, replying to Mr. Field, said that the Treasury had notified the Local Government Board that they do not propose to make grants to Distress Committees in any part of the United Kingdom.

IRISH TOBACCO.

Mr. RUSSELL said that the acreage under tobacco cultivation in Ireland in 1913-14-15 was respectively 162 acres, 225 acres, and 230 acres.

THE I.A.O.S.

In reply to Mr. P. J. Meehan,

Mr. ACLAND said the grants made from the Development Fund to the I.A.O.S. during the last three years have been as follows:—For year ended 31st March, 1914, £4,000; 1915, £5,000; and 1916, £5,970. The sum of £5,970 includes an emergency grant of £3,000 to meet the special conditions in which the Society has been placed by the war, and a special grant of £1,000 for work in organising an increase of tillage among small farmers in the congested districts. In view of the close connection of the work of Agricultural Organisation Societies with the question of food supply, the Development Commissioners are recommending no reduction of grants to either the English, Scottish, or Irish Agricultural Organisation Societies.

Mr. BYRNE—Can he say why the grant to this private body had been retained, while similar grants to public bodies have been reduced or withdrawn?

Mr. ACLAND—I know nothing about reductions, but as I was Financial Secretary at the time when the grant was increased I know it was because it was undoubtedly going to do extraordinarily good work.

GRANT FOR HORSE-BREEDING IN IRELAND.

Mr. RUSSELL, in reply to Mr. Meehan, said that the Development Commissioners proposed, in August last, that their grant of £10,000 for horse-breeding in Ireland should be reduced by £5,000. They have within the past week suggested reasons why the grant should be stopped altogether. Amongst these reasons is the reduction of the Department's expenditure on horse-breeding from their Endowment Fund, brought about through the shrinkage of Government securities, due to the war, which has left the Department a smaller amount available to apply to their schemes.

Mr. MEEHAN—Can he say if horse-breeding grants in England have been stopped?

Mr. RUSSELL—I rather think they have been largely increased, but I am not sure.

Mr. BOLAND—Has he made any representations on the subject?

Mr. RUSSELL—Oh, yes, we have been in constant communication about this grant, because I think it is a most serious thing to have stopped it. (Hear, hear.)

HORSE-BREEDING IN ENGLAND.

Mr. ACLAND further informed Mr. P. Meehan that the grant for horse-breeding to the Board of Agriculture and Fisheries, 1915-16, was £31,500, £26,500 of it coming from the Development Fund, and £5,000 being an ordinary Exchequer issue. For the year 1916-17, expenditure from the Exchequer not exceeding £40,000 has been authorised, and there will be no grant from the Development Fund.

Mr. MEEHAN—Can he state the reasons for the increase in the grant?

Mr. ACLAND—I think it is because it is anticipated there will be a great need for Army horses of the cavalry type, for which we have largely to rely on England.

Mr. MEEHAN—Would not the same reason apply to Ireland, where they have reduced the grant for horse-breeding?

Mr. ACLAND—I think not, because this is a matter of hours rather than days.

Mr. JOHN O'CONNOR—Is it not a fact that before the war all the remounts necessary for the Army were bought in Ireland?

Mr. ACLAND—There is a great difference between ordinary purposes and war mobilisation.

MUNITION-MAKING IN DUBLIN.

Dr. ADDISON stated, in reply to Mr. Field, that the Dublin National Shell Factory is already giving employment. The weekly wages bill at the end of last month was £150, and is rapidly increasing as additional machines become availble. The Dundalk Munitions Factory is controlled by the Great Northern Railway Company, who are carrying out part of their contract at their works in Belfast. It was therefore considered advisable for administrative reasons to include Dundalk in the Belfast area.

OBITUARY.

MR. JAMES COLLINS.

Mr. James Collins, Chief Inspector of Dairies for the Dublin Corporation, died yesterday. Mr. Collins was in good health on Wednesday, and was in the city. He took suddenly ill yesterday morning and passed away in a short time. Mr. Collins was associated with the Home Rule movement in its earliest stages, when Isaac Butt was its leader. While Butt was imprisoned at Kilmainham Mr. Collins was suspected of conveying letters to the Fenians who were in the prison. On this account he was searched each time that he went to visit Butt. He was a friend of the Fenian chief, James Stephens, and arranged a meeting between Davitt and Stephens in 1901. A Dublin man, Mr. Collins was intimately acquainted with the city, and wrote a number of historical sketches of it. He contributed poetry and prose to the Dublin Press.

WORK OF THE N.S.P.C.C.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

NAVAN, THURSDAY.

A public meeting, in connection with the Navan and District Branch of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children was held in the Y.M.S. Hall here this evening. Rev. J. J. Poland presided. There were also present:—

County-Inspector Gray, R.I.C.; Messrs. J. P. Timmon, J.P.; J. Cooke, Lady Everard, Mrs. Pollock, Hon. Secretary; Miss Hanly, Hon. Secretary, League of Pity; Mrs. Stourton, Mrs. Barton, Mrs. Kersteman, Mrs. Gorman, Mrs. Phillips, Mrs. Kerr, Miss Healy, Miss Pollock, Mrs. Cooke, Mrs. and Miss M'Glen, Mrs. Sutton, Mrs. Clinton, Mrs. Kellett, Miss M'Cordrick, Miss Power, Chief Organiser, etc.

Lady Everard, in moving the adoption of the report, said—There were very many women getting large separation allowances, larger than they had previously received, and she was glad to say that the Society was urging its inspectors to look after the children of these women, and she could not tell them of the good their inspector had done for these women.

Mr. J. P. Timmon seconded.

The report was adopted.

Miss Power, Chief Organiser of the Society in Ireland, said that the inspectors took on their shoulders the extra work involved by the absence of their comrades, who had gone to the war, and also the work of investigation for the Soldiers' and Sailors' Families Association throughout the country, and also investigations in connection with the Prince of Wales's National Relief Fund. In one branch in Ireland 1,500 visits were paid by the Society's inspectors in connection with that Fund, and in the same branch 779 cases were investigated for the Soldiers' and Sailors' Families Association by the inspectors, and 1,000 visits paid. They had heard it said that the soldiers' wives had been drinking to excess. The first inquiry that Society made, at the request of the War Office, was as to the accuracy of that statement. She was glad to tell them that the Director of the Society was in a position to state definitely and truly that that rumour was a gross slander on their soldiers' wives. (Applause.) In the beginning there may have been some cases, but now they knew the value of money. Through the action of their inspectors 800 Savings Bank accounts had been opened by soldiers' wives. In one town where a report as to drinking women had been made the Society found that out of 84 women there were only two drinking wives and 82 respectable wives. These black sheep gave the bad name to the others. There was not one amongst them who would not stand up for the soldiers and sailors. Why on earth, then, should they criticise the soldier's wife and put her on one side as a "ne'er do well"? With regard to those who did drink, the society was taking active steps that the children shall not suffer. The society was also consulted with regard to the children of interned aliens.

The Chairman said that it was through the inquiries made by the inspectors in the different districts that the charge made against the wives of the poor soldiers—that they were almost universal drunkards—was proved to be untrue. (Hear, hear.) There were cases, but the wonder is that they are so few, taking everything into account—surroundings and the anxious time that these people had owing to the worst possible news that they might receive.

MATRIMONIAL CASES.

MR. C. GRAHAM WHITE DEFENDANT IN A RESTITUTION SUIT.

In the Divorce Court, London, yesterday, Mrs. Dorothy Cadwell Graham White was granted a decree of restitution of conjugal rights against her husband, Mr. Claude Graham White. The suit was undefended.

Counsel said the marriage took place in June, 1912, at Winford, Essex. There was no issue of the marriage. A difference arose over the husband's conduct, and in 1914 the petitioner left the respondent for a time. In November of that year they agreed to live apart for about six months, and Mrs. Graham White went to the United States to her parents. She wrote to her husband frequently, and came back in August last, but he did not meet her. From that time he had refused to return to her. On October 7th petitioner wrote to the respondent:—

"DEAR WHITE,—I am just writing you a few lines to ask you to make a home for me, and restore to me all my rights as your wife. I am quite willing and ready to blot out from my memory all that has happened. I have done my best to break off your attachment to the woman who has so far made our lives unbearable, and I hope before it is too late you will give her up and return to me. Think this matter over.—Yours,

"DOROTHY."

In his reply the respondent said:—

"I have written to you fully explaining the reasons why we could never live together again with any hope of happiness, and I have never seen any sufficient reason for altering that decision. Since your return to England I have told you verbally and in writing we are entirely unsuited to each other. I have no wish to reproach you with your conduct, but your written statements do not entitle you to say that another woman has been the cause of our parting. It has been my desire throughout to cause you no needless suffering, and to behave towards you in a kind and most considerate manner."

Petitioner having given evidence, Mr. Bargrave Deane granted a decree of restitution, to be obeyed within fourteen days of service.

LADY DRUMMOND'S ACTION.

In the Divorce Court, London, yesterday a decree of restitution of conjugal rights was granted to Lady Enid Evelyn Malet Williams Drummond, a sister of the Earl of Lisburn, against her husband, Sir James Hamlyn Williams-Drummond, of Hawthornden, Lasswade, Midlothian, and Edwinsford, Llandilo, Carmarthenshire. Counsel stated the parties were married in November, 1914, and there were no children of the marriage. After undergoing an operation last January, respondent complained of neurasthenia, and suggested that they should give up Edwinsford, and that his wife should live with her mother. She protested, and then he wanted a separation, which she declined. Last May he went to London, and she went to see him, but was unable to do so. In August she wrote to respondent a letter in which she said:—"It is absolutely imperative for you to get rid of the L.'s. It would be a public insult to me for you to have them back. Now, darling, pull yourself together and let us be happy again, which we never can be until you have made this change."

In his reply, the husband said:—"It is impossible for me to comply with your request, as I have found since we married that I do not love you, though, believe me, I care for you very much. I am in love with Mrs. L., and it is impossible for me to live with any body else. Our life would be miserable together, so we had better separate. This will be my last letter."

In December petitioner again wrote to her husband expressing her willingness to take him back, but received no reply.

Petitioner having given evidence, his lordship made an order for restitution of conjugal rights within a month of service of the order, it being stated that respondent was at present in Maderia.

IRELAND A NATION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—In his speech in the House of Commons on January 11th Sir Edward Carson said:—

He (Mr. Redmond) and I are old opponents. I do not use the word enemies. But I am quite sure from my heart that nothing would be more likely to bring us together on a common platform than that we should find Ireland and England and Scotland absolutely unanimous in doing what is necessary for the carrying out of this war.

These words are full of hope for Ireland. Party spirit is dying out. Difference of opinion we shall have always with us, but this only stimulates thought. Party spirit blinds our eyes to truth. The great hindrance in the past to Irish national unity has been conflicting interests among her people. Perhaps, the chief factor which constitutes nationality is some great outstanding community of interest, which casts into the shade smaller conflicting interests. Party spirit magnifies differences: community of interest reduces them to a minimum.

The present war affords Ireland such a community of interest as she has not had for centuries, if ever. If Ireland unites to a man in a supreme effort to defeat her common enemy, she will become a nation in a sense in which she has never been one before. It will mean that Ireland loyally accepts her place in the British Empire, and the British Empire will willingly grant to Ireland those national rights and liberties which experience has proved to be the real strength and unity of the Empire. If all Ireland loyally accepts her place in the Empire, the great principle for which Unionists have contended will have triumphed. If Ireland becomes a united nation, the Nationalists will have realised their ideal. Both parties will be satisfied, and contention will cease, and all will settle down to work together for the good of their common country.

No arrangement for the government of Ireland can be satisfactory which does not include the cordial co-operation of the industrial and wealthy province of Ulster. The Ulster difficulty is mainly based upon the fact that the Ulster loyalists have hitherto mistrusted the loyalty of the other provinces. If the latter do their duty to the Empire in this war, that suspicion will have been proved to be groundless, and the main obstacle in the way of a united Irish nation will have vanished. What I would urge upon all patriotic Irishmen at the present time is that they can best serve Ireland by each one doing his best to help the Empire and its Allies to win the war. Every man of them is willing to fight for Ireland. Cowardice was never the fault of an Irishman. They have done more than their share in the building up of the Empire. To-day, to join in the war against the Germanic Powers is the best way to fight for "Ireland a nation." If we win, the result for Ireland will surpass the dreams of Ireland's most ardent patriots.

It does not matter how we get the men so long as we get them. If the Imperial Parliament decides to rely upon voluntary effort in Ireland, all the more obligation will rest upon us to prove ourselves worthy of this confidence. Prejudices, strong and deep, exist among us, arising, as Mr. Birrell truly stated, from our past history. But we are rapidly freeing ourselves from them. Let Sir Edward Carson and Mr. Redmond give us a lead in true patriotism, and the whole nation will follow.—Yours, etc.,

THE SOLDIERS' CENTRAL CLUB.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—In your report of the proceedings yesterday on the occasion of the formation of this Club one of the speakers is reported as having stated—"There were also a number of convalescent soldiers in the various city hospitals. The Automobile Club had made arrangements to take the men out of the hospitals to the country in good weather, but that could not be done in the winter, so that they wanted some place in the city where they could go to meet their comrades and have a smoke."

It seems incredible that citizens of Dublin, through whose midst wounded soldiers are daily driven to and from the Soldiers' Winter Club at Ballsbridge, should be unaware of the work being done for them there. Apparently it was understood that the arrangements made by this Club for our poor wounded fellow-countrymen ended last autumn, and that nothing has been done for them since. May we be allowed to inform the various people who have interested themselves in this new Club of the facts, which are as follows?—

At the Scalp, where the Irish Automobile Club rented desirable grounds and a pavilion, 3,080 wounded soldiers were entertained between 28th June and 1st October. There they had all sorts of outdoor games and tea, and were driven there and back to their respective hospitals in motor cars. On the 16th October last this Club opened the Winter Club for Wounded Soldiers at the Art Industries Hall, Ballsbridge, which the Royal Dublin Society very kindly gave the use of, and which it is proposed to use till 1st May next, when a Summer Club for wounded soldiers in the country will be again opened.

Since the 16th October last over 3,500 wounded soldiers have been entertained at Ballsbridge. There they have all manner of indoor games (cricket, two full-sized billiard tables, deck billiards, quoits, badminton, etc.), while small tables are provided for cards, etc., for those more severely wounded. Men are provided with tea, and competitions are held and prizes awarded for all the games, while there is a constant supply of music. At Christmas three special parties were held, and 312 men attended and had the pleasure of each getting a present off the Christmas tree. All soldiers are brought to and from the Club in motor cars. Any member of the public taking an interest in this work is heartily invited to attend and see the arrangements any day between 3 and 6 p.m.

The foregoing are the facts as to this branch of the work of the Irish Automobile Club, the members of which will hear with pleasure the establishment of the Soldiers' Central Club in this city, which will, we hope, be availed of by soldiers, whom one so often meets in considerable numbers in the streets.—Yours, etc.,

H. S. CHAYTOR, Secretary.

EXCHEQUER BONDS IN IRELAND.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—With reference to letters appearing in your paper on the above subject, would you permit me to ask why depositors in the Post Office are denied the facility of transferring their money into Exchequer Bonds direct, thus avoiding the trouble of having first to withdraw it, receiving payment over the counter, perhaps, in 10s. Treasury notes? I have a couple of hundred pounds in the Post Office, earmarked for an invalid child, and am naturally anxious to increase the amount for her benefit, and at the same time to help my King and country by investing the modest sum at my disposal in War Loan. The red tape of the Treasury blocks the way.—Yours, etc.,

RECRUITING IN IRELAND.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Mr. Birrell states that 250,000 of the 400,000 men in Ireland of military age are required for agriculture, even in war time. This means that, as very well expressed by Mr. Samuel last week, the decorations of the house must be carried on, although the house itself is on fire. All the members of my family of military age at home and abroad are serving King and country, and there are plenty over and under that age to look after the agriculture, as in France.—Yours, etc.,

PICTURE MATINEES AT THE THEATRE ROYAL.

On Monday next, at 2 o'clock, the great film, "Jane Shore," will be shown at the Theatre Royal, and at six special afternoon performances, commencing each day at 2 o'clock. Among the many female characters who crowd the pages of history, few so deeply stir emotions as the unfortunate lady known as Jane Shore. The age in which she lived was a picturesque one, and, viewing it from this period of time, it presents itself as a series of dramatic episodes, in which love, war, cruelty, treachery, intrigue, and murder were the chief features. Jane Shore's life as the King's favourite was one of great splendour; but, being a woman of gentle disposition and largeness of heart, she distinguished herself by acts of charity and mercy, and seems to have been exceedingly popular with all classes at that time. With the passing of the King her power passed away, and neither her beauty nor her helplessness saved her. The story of her life is at once a remarkable one, pathetic, and full of human interest and woe.

DUBLIN STOCK EXCHANGE.

MARKETS CHEERFUL. WAR LOAN BETTER. GUINNESS GOOD. MARCONIS WANTED.

DUBLIN, THURSDAY EVENING.

There was a continuance of satisfactory support for leading representative securities on the Dublin Stock Exchange this afternoon, and improvements were the rule. National Banks, Guinness Ord., Marconi Wireless Telegraph Ord., Home Railway Ord., and Coats Preferred Ord. were features of strength. The Funds met with further attention and support. War Loan 4½ p.c. stock rose 1/16 further to 97⅜, while Consols repeated 58⅜. Kingstown Urban District 3½ p.c. stock closed sellers at 80, with about 70 to 75 unofficially bid. The Bank section was very firm on the earning and dividend position of all these concerns throughout the United Kingdom and Empire. Nationals rose ¼ to 15⅜ bid, but no shares offered under 15½ unofficially. Bank Stock repeated 200¼. Hibernians 4¼, and Royals 11. Provincials were marked ex-dividend. Steam Securities were idle. The support for Marconi Wireless Telegraph Ord. shares was continued, and the price rose 9d. to 39s. Home Railways became a firmer market, and buyers had mostly to pay higher prices to secure stock. Great Northern Ord. rose ½ to 93½, and the Debs. ½ to 82 x.d. Great Southern and Western Original rallied ¼ to 85½, and the Guaranteed Stock repeated 80½. Midland Great Western Ord., Pref., and Guaranteed Stocks were idle; the 4 p.c. Deb. Stock repeated 73. Baronial Guaranteed and Colonial and Foreign Government and Railway securities were idle. Tramways were also drawn blank. Dunlop issues continue firm. Parent Tyre Ord. remain good round about 19s., a rise of 9d. on previous marking, but no business was done. THE MONEY MARKET.

Bank Rate (changed August 8, 1914) ... 5 p.c.

(FROM OUR FINANCIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, THURSDAY.

There was no alteration in the Bank rate this morning. The tone of the Money market was not so firm. Money, both for the day and the week, was in better supply at 4¼ to 4½ p.c., and the market did not have to make application to the Bank of England, the latter having no fresh business in loans or discounts to report. A call of £480,000 on New South Wales 5 p.c. Loan was paid. There was no increase of activity in the discount market, and rates were not particularly steady. The increase of a million in the Bank of England's reserve shown by the Bank return had something to do with the slacker tendency of rates in the afternoon. The American exchange, too, which was weaker during the morning, subsequently recovered to 4.77¼ to 4.77⅜. As stated yesterday, the £10,000 French Treasury bill issue was over-subscribed. Allotments indicated that tenders for £100 have received £96 worth.

DUBLIN STOCK EXCHANGE.

MARKETS CHEERFUL. WAR LOAN BETTER. GUINNESS GOOD. MARCONIS WANTED.

DUBLIN, THURSDAY EVENING.

There was a continuance of satisfactory support for leading representative securities on the Dublin Stock Exchange this afternoon, and improvements were the rule. National Banks, Guinness Ord., Marconi Wireless Telegraph Ord., Home Railway Ord., and Coats Preferred Ord. were features of strength. The Funds met with further attention and support. War Loan 4½ p.c. stock rose ⅛ further to 97⅞, while Consols repeated 58⅜. Kingstown Urban District 3½ p.c. stock closed sellers at 80, with about 70 to 75 unofficially bid. The Bank section was very firm on the earning and dividend position of all these concerns throughout the United Kingdom and Empire. Nationals rose ¼ to 15⅝ bid, but no shares offered under 15⅞ unofficially. Bank Stock repeated 200¼, Hibernians 4¼, and Royals 11. Provincials were marked ex-dividend. Steam Securities were idle. Grand Canal Pref. repeated 5. The Debs. were marked ex-dividend, but have not been dealt in, since before the war. In Breweries Guinness Ord. were good, and rose another ⅜ to 24⅜, and the Pref. ⅛ to 12. Dublin Distillers' Pref. fell 6d. to 15s. 3d.; others were unchanged. The support for Marconi Wireless Telegraph Ord. shares was continued, and the price rose 9d. to 39s. Home Railways became a firmer market, and buyers had mostly to pay higher prices to secure stock. Great Northern Ord. rose ½ to 93½, and the Debs. ⅜ to 82 x.d. Great Southern and Western Original rallied ¼ to 85¼, and the Guaranteed Stock repeated 80⅛. Midland Great Western Ord., Pref., and Guaranteed Stocks were idle: the 4 p.c. Deb. Stock repeated 73. Baronial Guaranteed and Colonial and Foreign Government and Railway securities were idle. Tramways were also drawn blank. Dunlop issues continue firm. Parent Tyre Ord. remain good round about 19s., a rise of 9d. on previous marking, but no business was done. The Def. maintained yesterday's enhanced level at 18s. 3d., while the Pref. recovered, and rose 4½d. to 14s. 6d. Dunlop Rubbers were about 1s. higher at 43s., 43s. 6d., unofficially. Bolands Bakery Shares were again called 42s. 6d. bid. In Drapery Shares, Switzer and Co. 4 p.c. £10 Debs. were dealt in at 7, and Walpole Brothers Debs. closed sellers at 95s. THE MONEY MARKET.

Bank Rate (changed August 8, 1914)... 5 p.c.

(FROM OUR FINANCIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, THURSDAY.

There was no alteration in the Bank rate this morning. The tone of the Money market was not so firm. Money, both for the day and the week, was in better supply at 4¼ to 4½ p.c., and the market did not have to make application to the Bank of England, the latter having no fresh business in loans or discounts to report. A call of £480,000 on New South Wales 5 p.c. Loan was paid. There was no increase of activity in the discount market, and rates were not particularly steady. The increase of a million in the Bank of England's reserve shown by the Bank return had something to do with the slacker tendency of rates in the afternoon. The American exchange, too, which was weaker during the morning, subsequently recovered to 4.77¼ to 4.77⅜. As stated yesterday, the £10,000 French Treasury bill issue was over-subscribed. Allotments indicated that tenders for £100 have received £96 worth.

LONDON STOCK MARKETS STEADY.

BUSINESS QUIET. HOME RAILS NOT SO GOOD.

(FROM OUR FINANCIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, THURSDAY.

The Stock Exchange preserved a steady tone. Business was light, however, and quotations, even in the domestic sections, developed some hesitation on advances. Reports of the commencement of a big Austro-German attack on Salonika perhaps accounted for some degree of hesitation among buyers, but, on the other hand, the increasingly circumstantial character of statements relative to the grave state of the Kaiser's health were calculated to assist sentiment.

The gilt-edged section advanced, but fell back, and concluded with little change. Consols and the War Loans were without net change, but Colonial issues were spottily better, New South Wales Scrip improving to 1¼ discount. India 3½ p.c.'s fell ⅛ to 80⅜. There was no other variation. Irish Land Loan and Bank of England Stock were steady.

In the Foreign market Continental issues were idle. Russian Bonds showed a drooping tendency, but they closed unchanged. Greek Rentes met a little attention and support at around previous levels. Tintos lost 1⅛.

Home Rails recorded some further moderate gains, though business was rather smaller, and the finish was rather irregular, though gains of ¼ predominated in the Heavy group. South-Western Pref. fell ¼, and Midland Pref. lost ¼. There was not much doing in Passenger issues. South-Eastern Def. rose ¼, but the Pref. shed ¼.

Firmer cables from New York stiffened the American market. The technical position on the other side has also benefited from the shake-out experienced during the last few days. Local business underwent no expansion, however. There were many net gains of ¼ to ½. Eries rose a full point, and New York Centrals recovered their quarterly dividend deduction. Milwaukees and Chesapeakes held net rises of ¾. Illinois Centrals showed heaviness, losing ½. Steel Common failed to share the better tone prevailing, the Common falling ¼.

Canadian Pacifics closed under the best with a rise of ½. Grand Trunk 1st and 2nd Prefs. each rose ½, but the Debs. lost ½. Mexican Rails were dull, the 1st Pref. falling ½. The fresh murders of American subjects in Mexico created an unsettled feeling. Argentine Rails were held in check by the different condition of the exchange. Central Argentine Def. fell 1¼, Brazilian Railway Common lost ⅞, and United of the Havana was ¼ up.

Bank Shares were irregular, and showed mixed net changes of ⅛ to ½, after allowing for dividend deductions. There was little doing in the Supply group. Lyons were unchanged, and Harrods lost 3d. Lipton Pref. and Maypole Dairy Def. both added 3d. In the Shipping group, P. and O. Def., closing over the lowest, was 1 down, and Royal Mails finished dull at 99¼. Armaments lost the turn here and there, though Cammell Lairds added 1/16. The quotation of 10s. 6d. for Cargo Fleets given two days ago was an error. RUBBER SHARES DULL.

(FROM OUR FINANCIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, THURSDAY.

The Rubber Share market was somewhat dull to-day. The price of the raw material was again lower at 3s. 9½d., and the tendency for producing shares was, therefore, rather unfavourable. There is some difference of opinion with regard to the boom being over, but it is certain that at present there is much less doing, and prices are lower. To-day a fair amount of selling was done by people who have apparently been speculating.

THE MINING MARKET.

(FROM OUR FINANCIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, THURSDAY.

Business among Mines were on the same limited scale as recorded during immediately preceding sessions, but specialities were good in some directions. Kaffirs were spottily good, but Diamond Shares moved with a good deal of irregularity, though variations were seldom wide or particularly significant. Rhodesians remained quiet and on the dull side, while Westralians were quiet and hesitating. Base metal shares did not show to advantage. Both Tintos and Anacondas finished lower, despite good recoveries in prices for copper and tin metals. The former rose 40s. and the latter 20s. per ton.

MARKET REPORTS.

LONDON (THE BALTIC)—Thursday.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

Wheat cargo market exhibited a strong tone owing to renewed strength in America, and holders offered sparingly at 6d. to 1/- rise. Buyers, however, were not disposed to operate freely at the enhanced prices ruling, while confining their purchases to pressing wants. Sailer, 11,500 quarters, Western Australian, expected sailed, changed hands at 64/- net; sailers of Australian, on passage, sellers, 65/-; do., February shipment, 64/-; April 62/3; steamer, blue stem, due out to load, 65/9; do. and white Walla, January shipment, 63/9; Barusso, 63lbs., February, 67/-; Rosafe, 62lbs., January-February, 64/6; and a sailer, Baril, 62lbs., expected March, 64/6.

Parcels were in good demand at 6d. to 9d. rise; No. 1 Northern Manitoba, afloat, sold 64/6, Jan.-Feb., 64/3 to 64/6, February-March 64/9 to 65/-, April-May 62/6 to 62/9, May-June 61/6 to 62/3.

Maize rose 6d. to 1/-, but demand was less active, recent liberal purchases having satisfied immediate wants. Steamers of yellow La Plata, January 20-February, also February-March held for 54/-. The tone was quieter at the close.

Parcels opened firmer but closed quiet; La Plata, February-March, sold 53/6 to 53/3, and white flat African, arrived, 50/4½.

Barley firm but largely nominal owing to paucity of offers. A sailer, Californian brewing, February shipment, also Oregon, blue and white, on passage, quoted 52/-.

Oats firm; Bahia Blanca, January-February buyers, 35/6, and La Plata do., February-March, 35/3.

LIVERPOOL CORN MARKET—Thursday.

Influenced by the further rise in America and continued strong freight situation, wheat here rose 4½d. per qr. on c.i.f. parcels.

Maize also firm and dearer owing to the same influences as wheat.

Wheat on the spot was firm, and prices showed a rise on yesterday's high prices.

Maize—Spot parcels sparingly offered, and holders raised their asking prices by 2d. per cental.

Flour firm, with an upward tendency.

Wheat cargoes firm and dearer. Blue stem and Walla per steamer, January, quoted 66/- from Atlantic ports; Australian sailer afloat 64/6, and Rosafe (62lbs.), January-February, 66/6 per qr.

In Parcels, No. 1 Manitoba, January-February, sold 63/9, February-March 63/10½; No. 2 hard winter, January-February, 59/-, and February-March 59/3 per quarter.

LIVERPOOL PROVISION MARKET—Thursday.

(SPECIAL REPORT.)

Bacon.—The steady feeling in this market for all kinds continued unabated, the further heavy arrivals being counteracted by the firmness in America and improving demand here. Clear bellies were especially in request, and, with stocks not over plentiful, these cuts realised a rise of 1/- per cwt., while other kinds showed no change. Irish, Danish, and Canadian moved moderately into consumption at recent rates.

Shoulders were in limited supply, and, with buyers more in evidence, prices were fully maintained for all cuts.

Hams firm, and a fair demand was experienced for short cut, but longs were in only moderate request at late rates.

Lard on the spot, following the sharp rise cabled from Chicago, was firmly held for 6d. to 9d. per cwt. rise, American refined being most affected, while a fair demand was generally experienced.

Cheese firm and in moderate request at the recent advance for finest white, while coloured, from relative scarcity, was held for a further 1/- per cwt. rise.

Butter firm, with a fair business reported in finest makes at recent rates.

Eggs slow of sale, and, with freer arrivals, prices are lower all round, especially Irish.

LIVERPOOL REFINED LARD "FUTURES" MARKET—Thursday.

(SPECIAL REPORT.)

Following the sharp rise in America prices here improved considerably during the early session. With strong Chicago opening cable a good demand was experienced during the afternoon, and prices further improved, and though not finishing at the best they showed a rise of 1/4½ to 1/7½ per cwt. on the day. January sold 61/7½, May 61/6, 61/10½, and 61/7½, and July 62/3 per cwt.

Cattle.

DUBLIN METROPOLITAN CATTLE MARKET.

North Circular road, January 13.

There was a particularly good following of cross-Channel and home buyers in evidence here this morning, Scotch and North of England clients being more than usually well represented. Market throughout was satisfactorily maintained for suitably meated stock, and a ready sell-up was accomplished in both sections. Prime stall-feds and well-finished out-fed beasts secured active patronage, most of the heavier qualities of steers and heifers being secured by exporters for Northern shires. For London and the South bullocks were alone popular. Lean and coarse descriptions of cattle on the whole scarcely par with last week's values, and towards the close developed a depression of perhaps 6d. to 1/- per cwt., but with a place for all current prices. Sheep again commanded an all-round good trade, both home and shipping support being appreciably sustained to the close. For the nicer pens of mutton terms were on a dearer basis. Veal calves a very small feature of the day's gathering.

Numbers on Sale.

	This week as compared with last.		Corresponding weeks of 1915.	1914.
Beasts	3,952 decrease	265	3,543	3,189
Sheep	5,822 decrease	39	6,326	4,800
Veal calves	9 decrease	2	10	13

Trade opened with appreciable activity for prime meated cattle, and especially those of heavy type suiting shippers. Still, dealers showed little disposition to outbid each other, and in absence of real competitive opposition sellers found it difficult to improve upon last week's currencies. Choice stall-fed bullocks and heifers repeated 48/- to 50/- per cwt., with an occasional 51/- for an extra fancy article. Best out-fed cattle averaged 45/- to 48/-, and medium grades 42/- to 44/- on foot, with coarser and lean beasts about 35/- to 38/- and 40/-, according to breed and merit. For the latter category of animals the market was none too well supported at any stage, and in closing proceedings showed a depression of about 6d. to 1/- per cwt. on the day. Fat cows continue to make a steady and satisfactory sale, best young classes realised 38/- to 42/6 and 44/- per cwt., and rougher sorts 32/6 to 37/6 per cwt.

In mutton department, with just a sufficient supply to draw upon, trade ruled steady from start to finish. Prime lots of wethers suitable to best local requirements realised 9d. to 9½d. per lb., and fancy small weights, say, 9¾d. and 10d. per lb., best ewes figuring at 7½d. to 8½d., and coarser lots 6½d. to 7d. per lb. Choice hogget sheep for South of England consumption were the turn dearer, but in taking the general run of sheep sales the market can scarcely be reported better than par with last Thursday's position. There was, however, a readier sell up at current terms, chiefly because of the keener shipping support. House lambs now available by private treaty.

Veal calves are gradually dwindling off, and the veal trade with us will be soon a thing of the past as at present drifting. The couple of fed vealers offered averaged 8d. to 8½d. per lb., and coarser calves 6d. to 7½d. per lb.

DUBLIN METROPOLITAN PIG MARKET (North Circular road), January 13.—Number penned, 1,186, being a decrease of 1 under last Thursday's entrants. Good attendance of buyers present. There is no new feature to report as regards trade from what was mentioned last week. On the whole, the demand was slightly easier, but last week's prices were firmly held. A clearance was effected at an early hour. Quotations:—Choice porkers, 80/- to 82/- and 85/- per cwt.; heavy shipping pigs, 76/- to 82/- per cwt.; stores, 60/- to 90/- each, according to size and quality; slips, 47/- to 58/- each; bonhams, 28/- to 42/- each.

DUBLIN STORE CATTLE MARKET, North Circular road, Jan. 13.—The several local auction marts in this neighbourhood were fairly supplied with useful store stockers to-day, and with a good attendance of buyers, mostly home raisers and feeders, catalogues were satisfactorily negotiated. Values on the whole worked out on rather firmer basis than previously, but it is difficult to record any actual advance in biddings for the separated lots on respective merits. Best forward beasts, 38/- to 42/6 and 44/-; others, 34/- to 37/6 per cwt.

DUBLIN MILCH CATTLE MARKET, North Circular road, Jan. 13.—Only 150 exhibits in this branch of market. Prime heavy dairy cows figure at some advance, making up to £32 to £35, and perhaps £36 for extra good classes. Average good springers and milchers, £22 to £30, and other sorts, £14 to £21 each. Dealers on more active track for suitable shipping springers.

GANLY, SONS, AND CO.'S DUBLIN CATTLE MARKET REPORT. Offices and Wool Stores—18, 19, and 20 Usher's quay, Thursday, 13th January, 1916.—Finished bullocks were in good demand, and maintained last week's enhanced figures. Other classes weaker, and tending towards a lower level of prices. Good trade for really well finished bulls and cows. Sheep met an improved demand, and sellers succeeded in making rather higher prices. Cattle, best, 46/- to 48/- per cwt. (live), and up to 51/- per cwt. for extra quality and finish; secondary and inferior grades, 46/- to 38/- per cwt.; mutton, 7d. to 9½d. per lb.—Auction Dates:—Thursday next, Jan. 20th—Auction of Store Cattle in 63 Prussia street. Wednesday, Jan. 26th—Auction of Wool in the Salerooms, Usher's quay. Consignments should be sent in at once. Telegrams—"Ganly, Usher's quay, Dublin." Telephone No. 216.—(Advt.)

GAVIN LOW, LTD.—Market Report, 50 Prussia street, Dublin, 13th January, 1916.—Supplies:—Cattle, 3,952—decrease, 265; sheep, 5,822—decrease, 39. Well-finished cattle were again in good demand at last week's prices, but trade for other descriptions was not so good. Last week's prices for sheep were well maintained. Quotations:—Best bullocks and heifers, from 47/- to 51/- per cwt., live weight; other do., do., from 40/- to 46/- per cwt., live weight; cows and bulls, from 30/- to 45/- per cwt., live weight; mutton, 7½d. to 10d. per lb. Fixtures:—January 27th—Annual Sale of Horses at Caroline Row, North Strand, Dublin, for Messrs. John Wallis and Sons. January 28th—Sale of Horses, Cattle, Crops, etc., and Letting of Lands at Puckstown, Drumcondra. Store Cattle Sales every Thursday.—(Advt.)

R. AND J. WILKINSON, 40 and 41 Prussia st., Dublin.—Cattle Market Circular, 13th January, 1916.—The supplies were rather lighter to-day, but trade was not quite so buoyant as last week, and it was difficult to repeat extreme prices. However, all lots of useful cattle were placed at in or about late rates, but the rougher and plainer descriptions met a more dragging sale. Sheep trade was good, with prices again favouring sellers. Best cattle, 46/- to 50/-, others 36/- to 45/- per cwt., live weight; mutton, 8d. to 9½d. per lb. Beasts, 3,952—decrease, 265; sheep, 5,822—decrease, 39. Store Cattle Sale every Thursday.—(Advt.)

LAURENCE CUFFE AND SONS' CIRCULAR, Smithfield, Dublin, January 13th, 1916.—Cattle would probably have been a shade easier to-day only we had a smaller supply, prices for top lots being unchanged, but rough grass cattle—and they did look rough—were a shade lower. Sheep a good trade, and all sold at an advance of 2/-. Store cattle, now that the year has turned again, are looking up. Fat cattle, 35/- to 50/- per cwt.; Store cattle, 38/- to 43/- per cwt.; mutton, 8d. to 10d. per lb. N.B.—Store Cattle Sale every Thursday.—(Advt.)

SMITH, GRIFFIN AND CO., 56 and 57 Prussia street, Dublin, 13th January, 1916.—Although we had a decrease of over 200 cattle at to-day's market, our trade was worse than last week, and prices not so good. Best finished cattle made about late rates, but secondary and inferior classes were fully 1/- per head lower. Sheep trade much better, and an all round advance of 1/- to 3/- per head. Quotations:—Beef, 48/- to 85/-, or 38/- to 47/-, and extra choice animals 48/- to 50/- per cwt., live weight; mutton, 8½d. to 9½d. per lb.—(Advt.)

DUFFEY, MANGAN, AND BUTLER, Cattle Salesmen, 37 Smithfield, Dublin, Thursday, January 13th, 1916.—Decrease of 265 beasts and 39 sheep. With a good attendance of buyers, there was an active demand for cattle, all classes getting easily cleared at last day's full rates. Better trade for sheep, prices advancing 2/- to 3/- per head. Beef, live weight, 34/- to 50/- per cwt.; mutton, 7½d. to 10d. per lb.—(Advt.)

HANBURY AND POTTERTON'S REPORT, January 13th, 1916.—Market smaller, and with a good steady trade, both cattle and sheep got placed at rather better prices. Cattle, best, 42/- to 50/- per cwt.; others, 36/- to 40/- per do.; mutton, 8d. to 9½d. per lb.—(Advt.)

ARMSTRONG AND SMITH'S REPORT, 25 Prussia street, 13th January, 1916.—Beasts, 3,952—decrease, 265; sheep, 5,822—decrease, 39. Good demand for prime finished cattle, with prices in sellers' favour; all other classes made late rates. Better trade for sheep at firmer prices. Beef (best), 45/- to 48/-, extra to 50/- per cwt., live weight; secondary bulls and cows, 37/- to 43/- per cwt., live weight; mutton, 8d. to 9½d. per lb.—(Advt.)

WM. A. WALLIS'S REPORT. Offices—17 Lower Ormond quay, and New Cattle Market, Dublin, 13th January, 1916.—The numbers to-day show a decrease of 265 beasts and 39 sheep. Prime beef met with good demand, and higher prices realised; secondary and rougher classes making late rates. Better all-round trade for sheep at from 2/- to 3/- per head advance. Prices:—Beef, prime, 44/- to 48/-, extra 50/- per cwt., live weight; other grades, 36/- to 40/- per do.; mutton, 7½d. to 10d. per lb. Numbers:—Beasts, 3,953; sheep, 5,822. Telegrams—"Transit, Dublin."—(Advt.)

P. O'CONNOR AND SON, Auctioneers, Cattle, Sheep, and Wool Salesmen, 49 Queen street, Dublin, 13th January, 1916.—Market Report—A better and keener trade was experienced for all classes of cattle this morning. Fat Dublin dairy cows are appearing earlier than usual this year. We had several very fine exhibits on our stand to-day, the property of Messrs. Kinsella, Norton, Cullen, and Brennan, and others, which made most satisfactory prices, and we believe that live weight prices for them would figure out better than prices obtained at similar markets this time twelve months. The sheep trade also was active, and we are of opinion that the cattle and sheep prices will considerably improve before the end of the stall-fed season. Telephone No. 535.—(Advt.)

ROBERT CRAIGIE'S REPORT, 37 Prussia street, Dublin, 13th January, 1916.—Supplies:—Cattle, 3,952—decrease, 265; sheep, 5,822—decrease, 39. The demand for well-finished cattle was maintained throughout the day and the improved rates of last market were easily realised. With secondary and rough sorts more plentiful a stiffer trade was experienced, but prices cannot be quoted any lower. Nicely-meated sheep show a further hardening tendency in prices. Quotations:—Cattle (best), from 46/- to 51/- per cwt., live weight; secondary, from 40/- to 45/- per cwt., live weight; cows and bulls, from 35/- to 45/- per cwt., live weight; sheep, from 7½d. to 10d. per lb. Telegrams—"Craigie, Dublin." Telephone—2553.—(Advt.)

REPORT of Messrs. BERGIN, O'CONNOR AND CO., Cattle Salesmen, 11 St. Joseph's road, January 13th, 1916.—Supplies:—Cattle, 3,952—decrease, 265; sheep, 5,822—decrease, 39. The somewhat smaller market tended to strengthen the general run of prices for well finished cattle, which realised last week's rates. The medium and small weight beasts had a preference over heavy cattle, and made 10/- per head more than last day. Sheep trade healthier, notably for choice light wethers and ewes, and a good clearance of all classes effected. Quotations:—Cattle (best), 46/- to 48/- and 49/- per cwt., live weight; secondary, 42/- to 45/-; cows and bulls, 36/- to 43/- per cwt. live weight; mutton, 7d. to 9½d. per lb. Telephone No. 3860. Telegraphic Address—"Approve," Dublin.—(Advt.)

Letting of 100 Acres of Land, Cherryhound, the Ward, Friday, 14th January, 1916, at 1 o'clock.—(Advt.)

Trade Reports.

DUBLIN WEEKLY WOOL REPORT, Jan. 13.—Trading in wool at this side continues to follow a quiet and limited course, with transactions more or less of a private character, in which values are difficult to ascertain with accuracy. However, there is no doubt of the extreme firmness of the situation, and holders are largely guided by Yorkshire movements. Stocktakings and sufficient supplies of wool on staplers' hands rather hangs up the progress of new business for the moment.

BRADFORD WOOL EXCHANGE, January 13.—It is now confirmed that restrictions are being placed on exports of crossbred wool from New Zealand to America, whilst it is becoming increasingly difficult to obtain licences for shipments from this country. Nevertheless, the raw material market keeps very firm, whilst Bradford quotations for tops and yarns appear to be on a sound basis. Machinery capacity and shortage of labour are the controlling factors.

Hay and Straw.

LONDON HAY AND STRAW MARKET, January 13.—Supplies of moderate extent passed off with a good demand at full rates. STORE CATTLE SALES.

MESSRS. GANLY.

There was a steadier tone in the demand for store cattle at yesterday's sale. The attendance of both home and cross-Channel buyers was better than for some weeks past, and all lots were well competed for, and nothing unsold. Bullocks sold up to £23, and heifers to £20, the live weight price being about 40/- to 45/- per cwt., with plainer sorts at rather lower rates. Messrs. Ganly hold a sale on Thursday next at 11 o'clock.

MESSRS. L. CUFFE AND SONS.

As is usual at this between seasons time of the year, the entries at the store sales continue on the small side. The shipping trade, with hay scarcer and dear in England, continues very quiet, but the local inquiry is inclined to be rather better, with all last year's grazing beasts now nearly sold. Prices were if anything a shade better, particularly for the second class lots, and nearly all were sold, polly bullocks, from £15 to £19 10/-, making from 40/- to 43/-, horned bullocks and heifers, £11 to £18, making from 38/- to 41/-. Messrs. Cuffe have a sale next Thursday.

R. AND J. WILKINSON.

There was quite a full attendance of buyers at yesterday's sale, and the demand ruled keen, with a further advance in prices. The entries were limited, but included some useful stock. The top prices of £20 15/-, £21 2/6, and £22 15/- were realised for horned bullocks; live weight prices were about 40/- to 45/-, with some forward lots up to 46/- and 47/- per cwt.

MESSRS. GAVIN LOW, LTD.

Entries were again small, only 311 cattle being offered. There was a considerable improvement in the class and quality of the animals shown, and, with a good attendance of buyers, a better demand prevailed. Prices all round showed an advance of about 20/- per head. The highest price—48/- per cwt.—was obtained for eight Co. Dublin shorthorn polies. Other lots, including Angus crosses, made from 45/- to 46/- per cwt.; secondary classes realised 39/- to 42/- per cwt.

SCULPTURE AT MUNICIPAL ART GALLERY.

THE HOGAN STATUE OF THOMAS DAVIS.

Yesterday, in the Municipal Art Gallery, Harcourt street, a lecture on "Sculpture," was delivered by Mr. Oliver Sheppard, R.H.A., Professor of Sculpture at the Metropolitan School of Art. Mr. Sheppard dealt principally with the age of bronze sculpture, introduced by Rodin in the 'Seventies of the last century, and the developments which have since taken place along the lines suggested by Rodin's statue of St. John the Baptist, and mentioned the contrasts between this and the best Greek work, as appeared in the Apollo Belvidere. Rodin's Age of Bronze was such a perfect work of art that it was seriously suggested at one time that it had been cast from nature. This famous statue had recently been removed from the Luxembourg Gardens to the Public Art Gallery, as had also Michel Angelo's "David" been removed from the Piazzo of Florence into the Gallery of Fine Arts. These removals suggested that it was more than time that the statue of Thomas Davis, by Hogan, should be removed from the Mount Jerome Cemetery to one of the public galleries in the city, more especially as it was not fitting that such a work of art should be retained in the open air, where it was liable to serious damage. Incidentally he mentioned that the principal sculptor of the present age is Lauteri, who is rendering such valuable service to art in the modelling conducted under his guidance in South Kensington. It is really owing to Lauteri's influence that there has been an important development of sculpture in these islands.

BE SURE
that you give to your general health its proper share of attention. It is rather a curious fact that while many people appear to manifest the greatest concern over their property generally, they are guilty of considerable carelessness concerning what is really life's chief asset—their general health. The tendency of the times is to make heavy—sometimes excessive—demands upon the physical powers, with the inevitable result that the system gets run down. Days like the present are exceedingly trying and the bodily powers are liable to suffer from the strain. You will be well advised if YOU TAKE
steps to combat the earliest manifestations of indisposition. Ills multiply—ailments develop—by neglect. Such symptoms as sick headache, biliousness, constipation, flatulence, heartburn, and loss of energy are indications of an over-worked or unsettled condition of the digestive organs. One of the best medicines to take under such circumstances is Beecham's Pills. In the treatment of disorders of the stomach, liver, and bowels there is no other proprietary medicine which has had such a lengthy and successful record as
BEECHAM'S PILLS.
Prepared only by THOMAS BEECHAM, St. Helens, Lanc. Sold everywhere, in boxes, Price—1/1½ (56 pills) and 2/9 (168 pills).

THE "IRISH FIELD" will be sent to any Address in the United Kingdom for three months for 1/8. Offices—11 D'Olier street, Dublin.
